Rangers sneak past A's; Astros lose one to Giants

Associated Press

OAKLAND — Mike Mason's original goals for the 1985 season are out of reach, but the Texas pitcher says he's still has a positive feeling.

Mason, 7-13, took one step in that direction Wednesday by limiting the Oakland A's to three hits in six innings as the Rangers downed the A's 6-3.

"I had set a goal of 15 wins but it just hasn't worked out," Mason said. "What I'm looking for in my last four games is the chance to turn it around. If I can get to 10 wins I'd be more than happy. It would give me a positive feeling."

Rangers Manager Bobby Valentine said Mason wouldn't have come out of the game except for a stiffening shoulder.

"He did a great job," Valentine said. "The thing that pleased me the most is that we got a big lead for him early and then he went out, threw strikes and made it work."

The Rangers jumped on A's starter Tim Conroy, 0-1, for four runs in the first inning. Valentine drove in the first run with a single, Larry Parrish knocked in another with a sacrifice fly, and the final two runs scored when A's left fielder Steve Henderson slipped and misplayed Don Slaught's fly ball for a two-base error.

The Rangers chased Conroy in the third when they loaded the bases. Steve Buechele's grounder off reliever Bill Kreuger drove in Valentine from third.

Astros 4-10, Giants 11-9

HOUSTON — Houston's Kevin Bass hit a two-run homer in the eighth inning of the second game as the Houston Astros edged San Francisco 10-9 Wednesday night to gain a split with the Giants.

Bass sent his 13th homer of the season over the left-field fence off loser Mark Davis, 5-9, after Dickie Thon had walked with one out in the eighth.

Frank DiPino, 2-6, got the victory in relief.

San Francisco pelted Houston pitchers for 28 hits in the two games.

In the opener, Jim Gott went the distance, scattering eight hits, and hit his third home run of the season as the Giants had 14 hits en route to an 11-4 victory.

The Giants went into the fifth inning of the nightcap down 8-4, but scored five runs, loading the bases on one-out singles by Ron Roenicke and Brad Wellman and a walk by Joel Youngblood off reliever Bill Dawley.

Singles by Bob Brenly and David Green scored Roenicke and Wellman and Rich Adams' double to left field brought home Youngblood and Brenly to tie the score at 8-8.

Pinch-hitter Chili Davis then hit a grounder to second baseman Phil Garner; who bobbled the ball as Adams scored.

The Astros built that 8-4 lead after Glenn Davis hit a two-run single and a homer and Denny Walling had a three-run homer during a six-run spurt of their own in the fourth.

Davis' 14th homer tied former Astro Joe Morgan for the club record by a rookie.

In the opener, San Francisco's Dan Gladden stroked four hits, scoring three times. Joel Youngblood, who hit a solo homer in the ninth, drove in three runs, while Dan Driessen and Rich Adams batted in two each for the Giants.

Rose gets record, plus one

he got his first hit on April 14, 1963, was the final stepping stone to his assault on Cobb.

"If the Reds hadn't needed a manager, he might not have gotten the chance," former teammate Johnny Bench said. "Maybe it was fate or destiny."

If it was his destiny, at least Rose has tried to keep it in perspective of his dirt-to-diamonds career.

"When I get the record," Rose said, "all it will make me is the player with the most hits. I'm also the player with the most at-bats — and the most outs . . . I've never said I was a greater player than Cobb."

Indeed, Rose never expected to supplant Cobb, who built his record in 2,339 fewer at-bats over 24 seasons and compiled a .367 career average, 62 points higher than Rose's.

Cobb, who died in 1961, ended his career on Sept. 11, 1928, popping out as a pinch-hitter for the Philadelphia Athletics at Yankee Stadium.

"No other record in no other sport has the impact of this," said the Padres' Steve Garvey.

No one playing now is anywhere near Rose. The closest active player is Rod Carew of the California Angels with 3,030 hits.

Aggie defense may relive its past

Holland said the butterflys might fly around his stomach, at least before the first snap.

"After the first play, you get your jitters out and just play the game," Holland said.

The Aggies will have 10 more games to play fter 'Bama, including eight in the SWC.

Holland said the conference will be "up for grabs" this year.

"I think we have a fair shot to win it," Holland said. "The team with the fewest injuries and least mental mistakes should win the conference. Having most of our games at home, will help a lot."

Austin, a fifth-year senior, is gearing himself to end his career at A&M on a high note.

"What I'd like most is to go out a winner," Austin said. "And I'll do what I can to help the team."

But all the players agree that a key to a successful season for A&M rides on one thing — team work.

"Winning is all about believing in yourself and believing in your teammates," Holland said.
