Smith

misconduct is insulting because Smith didn't do anything wrong.

"Any jury in America would find him not guilty," DeGuerin said.

Smith said he has faith and confidence in the justice system to discover the truth.

"I think justice will prevail," Smith said.

DeGuerin also said he will obtain some evidence that the prosecution has that is favorable to Smith.

"The prosecution has to give over some grand jury testimony favorable to Smith," DeGuerin said. "Some of this evidence exonerates Smith."

"I am not trying to hide any information," Turner said.

Turner said Smith's case is not over.

"We went in and argued our case today and the judge made his decision based on our statements," Turner said. "We have charged Smith as a government official, and Texas A&M's contract with Barnes and Noble fits the definition of what a government contract is."

"I will refile this case first thing tomorrow," Turner said Wednesday.
