

Texas Christian Repeats

Congratulations to Texas Christian university are in order for at least two reasons. Its students not only experienced the satisfaction of hearing their school announced winner of the 1954 Southwest Conference Sportsmanship trophy during the halftime activities in the Cotton Bowl New Year Day game, they also faced only the chore of engraving their school name under last year's winner.

They should have no trouble with the spelling since Texas Christian university was the 1953 winner.

Other conference schools should begin now to mend their conduct fences if they want to ease TCU out of first place, because if the Horned Frogs win again this year, they may try to claim the trophy on a permanent possession basis.

A Deathless Holiday

Perhaps we harp exceedingly long on safe driving for holidays and other occasions, but we reap the benefits when we can report that no Aggie was killed or seriously injured during the long Christmas holiday period.

It only goes to prove that if you drive carefully and sanely, life can last a pretty long time. You might as well stretch it out as long as possible if you're enjoying it.

Corn Association Meets Here Today

Members of the Texas Certified Hybrid Seed Corn association will meet in the Memorial Student Center today at 7:30 p.m.

The 1954 hybrid corn contest, sponsored by the association, and a discussion of foundation single cross stocks for the 1955 season will be discussed at the meeting.

TCU Wins Trophy Again This Year

Texas Christian university, for the second straight year, was awarded the Southwest Conference Sportsmanship trophy during halftime at the Cotton Bowl game Saturday.

Other schools in order of their places are as follows:

Rice, second; Southern Methodist university and Arkansas, tied for third; A&M fifth; Baylor, sixth; and University of Texas, seventh.

The trophy was awarded by Fred L. Livingston, Arkansas, president of the Southwest Conference Sportsmanship committee. Winner of the trophy was announced in a meeting of the committee earlier Saturday.

Committee members arrived in Dallas Dec. 30 for a banquet and show, followed the next day by the Cotton Bowl banquet and student dance at the SMU student union.

Purpose of the sportsmanship code is to further good relations between conference schools. It includes pre-game, game and post-game courtesies, along with team participation.

The sportsmanship committee was started seven years ago by Jimmy K. B. Nelson, then co-editor of The Battalion. The first presentation was made in Houston in 1948 to SMU.
