Wardens Annual School Set Feb. 7

The eighth annual session of the Game Warden school will open here, Feb. 7, and fifteen candidates for state appointments are expected to attend the class which will graduate May 20.

Curriculum for the course includes study of fishery and wildlife management, game and fish laws, English, and public relations. The college's wildlife and amphibian collection contains more than 25,000 specimens.

Other A&M faculty members, who instruct game warden classes are Dr. George K. Reid Jr., specialist in fisheries; Keith Dixon, game management; Paul Lukens, graduate assistant in natural history, and J. F. Pierce of the English department who teaches practical speaking.

The school was the subject of an article in The Saturday Evening Post last month.

Dr. W. B. Davis, head of the wildlife management department, said he had not yet been advised by the commission of final selections from about 60 men who have been taking preliminary field training since last September.

The school has been conducted during the spring term at A&M since 1947, except 1953. Only three vacancies existed on the warden rolls in 1953 and authorities insist on a minimum of 12 qualified candidates.

STUDENTS ARE ECSTATIC about Luckies. That's the word, straight from the latest, largest college survey ever. Again, the No. 1 reason Luckies lead in colleges over all other brands, coast to coast—border to border: Luckies taste better. They taste better, first of all, because Lucky Strike means fine tobacco. Then, that tobacco is toasted to taste better. This famous Lucky Strike process tones up Luckies' light, good-tasting tobacco to make it taste even better. So be smart, like the student in the Doodle above, titled: Lucky smoker swinging in hammock. Swing to Luckies yourself. Enjoy the better-tasting cigarette... Lucky Strike.

Better taste Luckies... LUCKIES TASTE BETTER...Cleaner, Fresher, Smoother!
