After losing their last three games by an average of 26 points, A&M found the answer to the zone defense of LSU—passing and outside shooting—to down the Tigers 58-47 last night before a surprised but pleased White coliseum audience of about 4,500. It was A&M's widest victory margin of the season and put the Cadet season record at 4-11. The Aggies resume Southwest conference play tomorrow night, meeting TCU and Dick O'Neal here at 8. There will be no Freshman game.

With junior John Fortenberry and soph George (Spider) Mehaffey hitting from outside and Bill Brophy driving for the bucket, the Cadets tore apart the Tiger zone and after the first four minutes led all the way.

Brophy scored 17 and was second high in rebounds with 11. Mehaffey had 16 points and 12 rebounds, Fortenberry eight points and 10 rebounds. Mehaffey also did a great defensive job on Ned Clark, LSU's 6-5 center who scored 24 points and had 28 rebounds in the Tigers' 73-61 December win. Clark had 12 rebounds but didn't get a single field goal. Tiger forward Roger Sigler scored 24, the game high.

Roger Harvey did a fine guarding job on Norm Magee before leaving the game with a twisted knee early in the second half. Magee got 21 points in that previous game but had only one field goal last night before Harvey left. After the game, it didn't appear that Harvey's knee would keep him out of the TCU game.

The Aggies hit 20 of 52 shots, 38 per cent, and outrebounded the taller Tigers, 56-50. LSU had an off night from the field after playing Kentucky to a 64-62 decision several days ago. The visitors made 14 of 77, only 18 per cent.

The win was the biggest margin of victory in cocaptain Fortenberry's Aggie cage career.

Fish Trim Allen In Overtime 86-84

Guard Jack Collier tied up the game in its dying seconds, then scored with four seconds to go in the overtime period to ease the Aggie Fish past Allen 86-84 last night.

It was an up-hill battle for the Fish, who trailed by eight points mid-way in the second half. Led by Fritzie Connally, Bryan Sutherland, and Carter Williams, the Aggies managed to whittle away Allen's lead and send the game into overtime. The Fish trailed at half-time, 31-34.

Williams' lay-up shot with 1:52 to go in regular play put the Fish ahead for the first time in the second half. Robert Rodrigue pushed Allen in front again, 71-69 with 1:20 to go, and set the stage for Collier's tying two-pointer with only 34 seconds left.

With the score knotted at 84-84 in overtime play, Collier drove in from the right side and laid in the winning bucket.

Sutherland was the leading scorer for the Aggies with 20 points, 17 coming in the dramatic second half. He also grabbed 15 rebounds to rank second in that department.

Connally, playing his last game for the Fish, was second in scoring with 19 points. He becomes eligible for the varsity after mid-term.

A&M shot 116 times in the contest, and connected with 38.
