AAUP Schedules Panel Talk

A panel discussion by A&M library officers will be presented at a meeting of the A&M Chapter of the American Association of University Professors at 7:30 Wednesday night in the Biological Sciences Lecture Room.

Topic for the panel will be "The Role of the Library in the Total Educational Program of the College."

Robert A. Houze, librarian, and Michael V. Krenitsky, Cushing Memorial Library staff, and Frederick S. White of the Texas Engineers Library will compose the panel which will discuss the over-all role of the library at A&M, the integration of the library with undergraduate and graduate course work, its function in special research and service areas and its teaching program.

The discussion will be given in conjunction with National Library Week, April 3-9. Instituted two years ago, National Library Week is observed by libraries of all types—school, college, public, specialized—throughout the United States.

Oil was discovered in southeastern New Mexico in 1927. Lea County, in this area, today produces crude oil worth over 200 million dollars a year.

Its purpose is to alert people to the importance of their libraries and to the resources available in them. A major aim is to encourage the reading of more good books. This program will serve as a prelude to the Cushing Library's own observance of National Library Week.

Following the discussion, members of the AAUP will conduct a business meeting.

Members of the Texas Woman's University Modern Dance Group are shown here in a scene from "Little David, Play on Your Harp," from the Negro Spiritual Suite. This will be one of the many numbers performed by the Modern Dance Group when they appear Friday, March 25, at 8 p. m.

TWU Dance Group Scheduled

The Texas Woman's University Modern Dance Group, featuring 17 girls, will perform in the Memorial Student Center Ballroom Friday, March 25, under the sponsorship of the MSC Music and Dance committees.

There will be no admission charge to the one-hour program, scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. Music Committee Special Events Chairman Richard Nagy said that all students and residents of the area are invited to attend the program.

The program will feature five Negro spirituals, "De Gospel Trail," "Let My People Go," "Go Tell It on the Mountain," "Little David, Play on Your Harp" and "Walk Together, Children."

Also featured will be three theater dances, "Chopsticks Fantasy," "Waltz Ballet" and "It's Old—It's New—It's Dance," and a saga of a Texas cowboy called "Sun and Sack."

Group Members

The members of the group are Armida Barela, Ann Brown, Karen Cohenaur, Carolyn Cox, Elaine Davis, Dora Gonzalez, Genevieve Hogue, Andrea Keepers, Mary Martha Monroe.

Nella Nagy, Enriqueta Olivares, Kay Osborne, Gloria Padilla, Betty Poindexter, Ann Wilson, Nancy Wright and Rose Anna Zamora.

Misses Gonzalez, Osborne, Monroe and Madeline Sowards will be featured in solo numbers. Also featured will be a trio consisting of Misses Cohenaur, Monroe and Osborne and a quartet with Misses Cox, Keepers, Nagy and Zamora.

Organized 23 Years Ago

The group was organized 23 years ago as an extra-class club. Since that time, the group has presented 23 formal evening concerts on the TWU campus. Twenty of these were presented by the Drama and Concert Series of the University.

They have performed at five conventions of the Southern District of the American Assn. for Health, Physical Education and Recreation in Houston, Tulsa, Birmingham, Louisville and Nashville and three of the association's are chosen from the choreography national conventions in St. Louis, Kansas City and Dallas.

In addition they have also performed for several international conventions, highlighted by an appearance at the International Convention of Physical Therapists in New York City before more than 2,000 international delegates.

They have also performed on national television and have been acclaimed by numerous newspaper critics.

Original Compositions

All of the dance compositions presented by the TWU Modern Dance Group are original. Themes developed for the group numbers through contributions from all members of the group. The choreography for soloists and for a small number of the dancers is developed by the individuals themselves.

The group also presents lecture-demonstration assembly programs for audiences comprised of high school and college students, teachers, administrators and parents.

Miss Poindexter is wardrobe mistress of the group, Phillis Donaldson is stage manager and Miss Sowards is the vocal soloist accompanying the group.

Lifelong Ambition Fulfilled Despite Civilization Advance

DALLAS (AP)—When Russell Thorp was a kid he wanted to be a stage coach driver like his dad. By the time he grew to young manhood the train had replaced the stage coach and Thorp became a cattleman instead.

At 82 he is the oldest member of the American Cattleman's Assn. His career parallels a romantic era of cowmen versus homesteader cowman versus sheepman and frontier justice against the rustlers.

He made his first roundup when he was 15 and for more than 50 years he was a rancher and working cowboy.

The Texas trail hands he met in his early days, he says, laid the foundation for the cattle business in Wyoming. He believes it so much that he headed a campaign which resulted in five monuments being placed along the Texas Trail as tribute to the Lone Star cowpokes who ran their herds to Wyoming in the 1880's and 1890's.

But he kept his father's stage coaches and gave one armored treasure coach to the Smithsonian Institution in Washington. The early days of the cattle business in Wyoming were filled with cattle rustling and frontier justice. In 1867 in Cheyenne vigilantes hung 8 rustlers, shot 4 trying to escape and sent several others to prison, the leather cowman recalls.

But the Wyoming Stock Growers Assn. never condoned such tactics as "dry gulching" suspected evil-doers, which was the custom of the time.

Thorp ran cattle in the Black Foot Indian Reservation of Montana and operated two ranches in Wyoming, one of them the Damfino Ranch, with as unusual a name as can be found in Western history.

Thorp says he drew out a new brand in the dust one day just after the turn of the century and asked some of his cowboys what to call it.

"Damned if I know" was the answer he got from all of them, so Damfino was its name.

One of the Wyoming rancher's favorite stories concerns a cowboy going by the name of James Murray in Wyoming in the early days.

The cowpoke wrote Thorp, who then was an official of the Wyoming Stock Growers Assn., and said he wanted to marry a schoolteacher but that he had shot a man in Texas and his real name wasn't Murray. Would Thorp help him clear his name.

Thorp contacted Texas Governor Hogg, who cleared the cowboy of blame so that he could take back his real name and marry his schoolteacher.

The man, said Thorp, was James Dahlman, who was later to nominate William Jennings Bryan for the presidency and who served as mayor of Omaha longer than any other man.
