PROJECT 24

in any country at a fee not exceeding the cost of copying plus postage. Also, a limited information service is provided on oceanographic subjects, and facilities are available in the Data Center for visiting scientists who wish to examine and study the data on file. Level of support for this work is $40,000 per year.

In the field of meteorology, "Project 150" is aimed toward providing a better means for determining the conditions of severe weather fronts. The approach to the problem of determination involves two phases: the first employs electronic storage of radar video information. In this way, with the data stored, changes can be detected in movement and other trends of the general storm.

The second phase involves analysis of behavior of storm cells and when used with the first, enables better evaluations of the various forms of severe weather. Support for the program totals $30,000 per year.

In the West Mississippi Delta area, research is being undertaken under "Project 195A" to determine the relation between the deposit activity and physical oceanographic environment of this area.

Data in this field which has already been accumulated includes Mississippi River flow, tides and currents, sediment load of the river water, the similar type load of the gulf water in the vicinity of the Delta, and the bottom deposits of the immediate Delta area in respect to sediment and minerals.

Also in the Mississippi area, the Corps of Engineers is in the process of digging a deep water ship canal from New Orleans along the northeastern side of the Mississippi Delta across Chandeleur Sound to the open Gulf.

KENNEDY

Western Europe and the Caribbean.

There was no elaboration, although Kennedy later told newsmen the talks touched briefly on the gold drain problem. Domestic matters apparently did not figure in the last of the conferences preliminary to transfer of power.

As Kennedy phrased it in talking with reporters, he and three of his Cabinet nominees had "the opportunity to get the thinking of the President and the responsible officers of the government on some of the major problems facing the United States."

Apart from weighty matters, Eisenhower offered Kennedy at least one tip on some of the conveniences available to the president. He let Kennedy know that helicopters are ready on short notice, if the new president wants to get about that way.

To demonstrate, Eisenhower ordered a whirlbird sent over. It arrived in five minutes, hovered briefly, and then headed off again. Kennedy attracted little notice in driving from his Georgetown home without a police escort.

Meeting Room Applications Now Available

Applications for meeting rooms for student organizations and clubs will be accepted in the Social and Educational Department of the Memorial Student Center, Mrs. Ann Keel, social director, has announced.

The beginning date for submitting the applications was 8 a.m. this morning.

Loren Gergens briefs two of his salesmen on new telephone services for business customers.

"I DIDN'T WANT TO BE STOCKPILED"

When Loren Gergens was working for his B.S. degree in Business Administration at the University of Denver, he had definite ideas about the kind of job he wanted to land. He was determined to profit from the experience of several of his friends who had accepted promising jobs only to find themselves in "manpower pools" — waiting to be pulled into a responsible position. "I didn't want to be stockpiled," Loren says. "That's no way to start."

As a senior, Loren talked to twelve companies and joined The Mountain States Telephone & Telegraph Company, an associated company of the Bell Telephone System.

From his first day challenges were thrown at him thick and fast. First, he supervised a group of service representatives who handle the communications needs of telephone customers. Then he served as manager of several telephone business offices. In these jobs Loren had to prove himself on the firing line, make right decisions and carry them through. He knew his next jump depended on only one man—Loren Gergens.

In July, 1960, he was made Sales Manager in Boulder, Colorado.

"I'm on the ground floor of a newly created telephone marketing organization. And I can tell you things are going to move fast!" Loren says. "It's rough at times, but hard work is fun when you know you're going somewhere—in a business where there's somewhere to go."

If you're interested in a job in which you can be your own prime mover—a job in which you're given a chance to show what you can do, right from the start—you'll want to visit your Placement Office for literature and additional information.

"Our number one aim is to have in all management jobs the most vital, intelligent, positive and imaginative men we can possibly find."

FREDERICK R. KAPPEL, President
American Telephone & Telegraph Co.
