No Problem To Ponder

Mrs. Wanda Johnson won't need to consult her reference books to discover why she is the new Mrs. Texas A&M. The pretty brown-eyed wife of senior finance major Arthur J. Johnson of Orlando, Fla., was chosen from a field of 22 finalists at the Mrs. A&M Dance Saturday at the Memorial Student Center.

Separation Hour Nears For ASC, Senate OK's Bill

AUSTIN (AP) — By mutual consent, supporters of Texas A&M University and Arlington State College took Monday the first step toward divorcing the two after a sometimes stormy marriage of 48 years. "I'm kissing them goodbye," said Sen. Bill Moore of Bryan, staunch Aggie supporter. "We're glad to leave," said Sen. Don Kennard of Fort Worth, Arlington State backer.

Sen. A. M. Aikin of Paris warned Kennard he is taking a big risk by depending on adoption of a constitutional amendment to give Arlington building funds from state ad valorem tax revenue, but Kennard replied: "We'd be no worse off than we are now — A&M has told us there is no more money. We've got no place to go but up."

Marriage Forum To Discuss Sex

"The Sexual Aspects of Married Life" will be discussed at the YMCA's third Marriage Forum Tuesday night. Dr. Henry Bowman of the University of Texas will be guest speaker at the 7:30 p.m. meeting. Topics to be considered include: importance of sexual compatibility in the total marriage relationship; pre-marital sexual relations; planned parenthood; ideals and standards of sex morality; complex causes of sex adjustment or maladjustment, and what religion says about sex.

Brazos Youth Stock Show Climaxes Months Of Work

Brazos County 4-H and FFA members climaxed months of hard work at the Ninth Annual Brazos County Youth Livestock Show on campus Monday. Although tired from two days of putting finishing touches on their animals the boys and girls were happy, some more so than others, but all happy. Judging of the seven classes of livestock got underway at 9 a.m. and by 3:30 p.m. more than 350 entries had been scored and the top animals chosen. Topping the class of steers was a Hereford owned by Jim Welch, College Station 4-H Club member. The reserve champion steer was shown by Jack Hutchison of the Bryan 4-H club. Other winners were: Grand champion heifer, Jerry Wellman, Bryan FFA; reserve champion Tony Varisco, Bryan 4-H. Grand champion gilt, Bob Franke, College Station 4-H; reserve champion Mike Bewley, Sul Ross 4-H.

Fish Get Louisiana Drill Win

BATON ROUGE, LA. — The Freshman Drill Team walked off with all the honors here Saturday at the Louisiana State University Invitational Drill Meet. The A&M unit captured top prizes in overall competition, basic squad drill and platoon basic drill and finished second in platoon fancy drill. Jim Vogas, team guidon bearer, won the blue ribbon in individual competition. Twenty-five freshmen and seven sponsors represented A&M at the 12-team meet which hosted outstanding drill units from Louisiana, Texas, Alabama, Mississippi and Arkansas.

'Molly Brown' Blasts Off With Big Roar

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — With a thunderous roar, a Titan 2 rocket blasted off today to propel astronauts Virgil I. Grissom and John W. Young toward the world's first orbit-shifting manned space flight. Conditions were reported "green and go" around the world as the 80-foot tall rocket flashed to life at 9:24 a.m. EST.

Malon Southerland, team senior advisor, said late Sunday night, "It looks like this could be one of the best teams ever."

"The spectators liked the various cadence changes—from slow cadence to fast cadence and back to slow," Southerland commented. Monday the team turned its thoughts toward home where they will be hosts to the first A&M University Invitational Drill Meet Saturday.

"It is always difficult to win your own meet," said Southerland. "An example is that LSU has never won their own meet, and they usually have a good team."

Southerland said he expects tough competition from Sam Houston and Arlington State plus some other units he hasn't seen compete this year.

The Black Knights of Southwest Louisiana edged out the freshmen in fancy competition Saturday, but that was the only mar to an otherwise perfect record—one of the cleanest sweeps in the meet's history.

Vogas commanded the nine-man squad champions, while team commander Donald L. Savage directed the unit in platoon competition.

Army Drill Instructors from Ft. Polk, La., judged the competition. Bruce Lane, '45, and his wife served as hosts to the drill team and held a party in their honor after the victory.

Vogas swept the honors from 19 other entrants in the individual category—the first year for competition in that division.

"He had a very good routine," Southerland said. "It was smooth; he was always doing something. This is unusual because he is guidon bearer of the team, and he hasn't had but about three of four days practice with a rifle this semester."

A&M Group Taped For TV Talent '65 To Show Singing Cadets

The Singing Cadets went in front of the television cameras Monday to be video taped for a entertainment special featuring college talent. The Cadets, along with talent acts from other Texas colleges and universities, were taped for Talent '65, a program being produced by KHOU TV, Houston. Southwestern Bell Telephone Company will be sponsor for the show. Tentative plans call for a series of one-hour television entertainment specials. No air dates have been announced. Robert Boone, director of The Singing Cadets, said his group will sing "You Make Me Feel So Young" and "Gonna Build A Mountain" from the Broadway play, "Stop the World, I Want to Get Off."

Senate Suggestion Box Shows Few Real Gripes

By MIKE REYNOLDS The suggestion box set up in the Memorial Student Center by the Student Senate has revealed that 70 per cent of all Aggies' suggestions are unprintable.

Most of the notes that were fit for consumption ran only a few words. However, one student found that the front of the blank was not enough room to complain about the administration's desire for academic excellence. He turned it over and wrote in small letters on the back. He finally gave up and paper-clipped a half sheet of paper to the note. He never got around to a suggestion — just griping.

place of the old ROTC divisions. Phones in the rooms brought two requests. Some student, tired of looking at the back of some cowpoke's hat, asked that the regulation about hats in Sbsa Dining Hall be enforced. One of the more serious requests dealt with the number of hours required to obtain a degree from A&M while other institutions require a smaller number. A&M requires 137 while TU students need only 120.

One night owl asked that the new lounges be kept open after midnight if the TV programs weren't over. Another entertainment-hungry Aggie complained that most tunes in the MSC juke box are out of date. While the eye of criticism was on the MSC, the usual complaints were voiced over the cold hamburgers and stale french fries.

A repulsed student from Duncan Dining Hall requested that attendants cut their hair. A short pocketbook must have spurred one Aggie to request that married students have to buy only one yearbook.

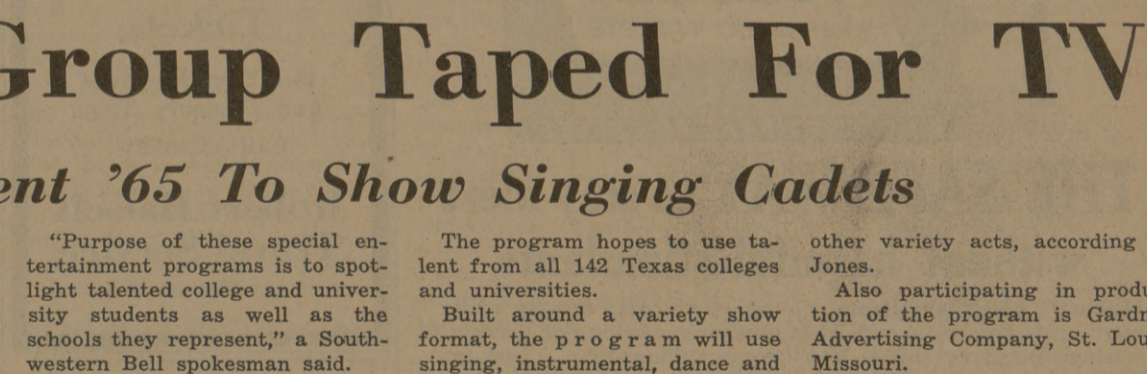

There were the usual time-worn complaints about getting political groups on campus, making the Aggie Sweetheart contest open to all girls from all schools and better communications between the Student Senate and the student body. One student even requested that a permanent suggestion box be set up. Most of these subjects came from one writer. In some cases three or four had the same idea. All in all, if the Student Senate discovered anything, they found that most Aggies don't really care to complain about anything.

Mother Of Year Nominations Open

The Student Life Committee is accepting nominations for the "Aggie Mother of the Year" award. Applications will be accepted until April 21. Nominations should be accompanied by a statement why the mother nominated should be selected as the "Aggie Mother of the Year." A three-by-five picture should accompany the nomination. All correspondence should be addressed to the Student Life Committee, Student Senate and mailed in care of the Student Programs Office in the Memorial Student Center.
