

che Battalion

Friday — Cloudy in the morning with rainshowers, thundershowers. Southerly winds 10-20 mph., becoming partly cloudy in afternoon. Notherly winds 10-15 mph. High 83°, low 69°.

Saturday - Partly cloudy. Westerly winds 10-15 mph. High 79°, low 53°.

845-2226

67 No. 112

glert

eam ries, h s and

LL LIVE. Missy Leonard does strange things with the punctured victim. The Aggie Blood Drive continues allas. Nurse Zola Rutherford lends a helping hand to Center. (Photo by Mike Rice)

ace after donating blood to the Wadley Blood Bank through Friday in the basement of the Memorial Student

Murtry comments

Film - makers are thinking harder

ommenting that "going broke has been good for Hollywood," ctively and creatively."

McMurtry, whose novel "Horsemen Pass By" was filmed as icture Show.'

ollywood has changed enormously in the last 10 years, try noted in his comparison of the filming of the two movies. "It ach more exciting place for a writer to work now than it was in conomic pressures are responsible for the changes, he said, that "Hud," starring Paul Newman, Patricia Neal and Melvin s, was a typical "star system" Hollywood production.

Financing for the $4.5 million "Hud" was obtained on the h of Paul Newman's box office appeal, McMurtry explained. "No ould have loaned that much money for the film on the basis of ok, author or director."

Costs for "The Last Picture Show" were kept down through the Larry McMurtry told an audience Wednesday that "financial use of much smaller technical crews, fewer high salaried "stars", shorter ulties have forced film-makers to think harder and work more shooting schedules and by cutting out such luxuries as individual rental cars for the use of movie personnel on location.

Commenting that film-makers often seem to be in awe of writers, in 1962, is the author of the highly successful new film "The McMurtry said he was treated with great respect when he arrived in Hollywood as a 22 year-old author of a successful first novel.

"They seemed to feel they had to treat me with kid gloves, but I was a very junior instructor at TCU at the time and was just glad they were making the film."

Despite his success as a screenplay writer, McMurtry said he still feels the novel is a more satisfactory media for an author to work in.

"A novel is something I can do in the whole," he explained. "This can never be the case with film where the writer must always enter into collaboration with others."

McMurtry, a native of Archer City who now resides in Washington, D.C., added he preferred novels to films for other reasons as well, including the novelist's greater freedom "to create a world not Claiming that much of the money spent on "Hud" was wasted, structured by time limits" and the fact that an unsuccessful writer can utry said the actual production value of the film was about $1 always write another book while the moviemaker who fails will

Smith will veto tax bill moves by legislature

Cloudy

and

Smith, enmeshed in the fight of his life for re-election, promised Texans Wednesday night he would veto any tax bill passed by the legislature in the coming special session.

Thursday, April 20, 1972

"I will present a budget that will require no new taxes, and I will use every available authority of the governor's office to insure that such a budget is enacted by the legislature," Smith said in a statewide telecast over 19 stations.

He openly used the no-newtaxes pledge as a vote-getting device for the May 6 Democratic primary.

"If you do not want higher taxes, and if you do not want to give the legislature a blank check to spend more of your money, then you should vote for Preston Smith," he said.

The telecast was paid for from his campaign funds.

A gubernatorial veto could be overridden by a two-thirds vote of the House and Senate. Even though he might lose the primary, Smith still would be governor and have his veto authority during the special session. Estimates of new taves that would be required to finance the state budget for the fiscal year beginning Sept. 1 have been in the neighborhood of $150 million. Smith's veto last year of appropriations for the next fiscal year made a special session, which the governor is expected

Rucker discusses environment on campus

The lighting situation of the Zachry Engineering Center is a "fiasco," said A&M Landscape Architect Robert Rucker Wednesday in front of Sbisa Dining Hall. In the 45-minute question-andanswer session sponsored by the Memorial Student Center Recreation Committee, Rucker sought to

AUSTIN (AP) - Gov. Preston to call in June, mandatory. The governor said in his taped television address that he promised last year he would propose a budget for fiscal 1973 that could be financed from existing taxes "My fellow Texans, Preston Smith will live up to that commitment," he said. "There will be no new taxes signed into law by Preston Smith during the next special session. . . This is a commitment to you and a friendly warning to the legislature. No new taxes will be acceptable and no new taxes will be signed into law," the governor asserted.

Smith compared his position with what he said were the views espoused by his three main opponents, Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes, Rep. Frances Farenthold and Dolph Briscoe.

Barnes and Mrs. Farenthold both think higher taxes will be necessary, and Briscoe has had little to say on the subject, Smith said.

"It is clear from the positions and non-positions of the other candidates that they have no stomach for a tough, belt-tightening approach to state spending," he said. "They intend to make no real effort to hold down spending or taxes.

"They unfortunately find it easier to say 'yes' than to say 'no' to the never-ending requests which obligate and over-spend the taxpayers' money."

he leaves there is no one to take his place," Rucker emphasized. "We used to have the Student Senate's Environmental Awareness Committee meeting every he defended the construction of month but then the chairman graduated."

All of the construction on campus has halted any landscaping

The trench that was once Military Walk is going to be turned into a bigger and better mall then presently exists around the library, Rucker said. Although the newly proposed parking lot because it will be hidden by an "earth sculpture," Rucker at-audience that he had saved them more than $140 million this year by forcing the legislature to drop plans in 1971 to pass an increase in the gasoline tax.

"The gasoline tax increase was nearly as distasteful to me as was the extension of the sales tax to groceries and medicine which Ben Barnes pushed through the Texas Senate, a tax which might have been adopted if it had not been for my opposition and that of the majority of the people in Texas," Smith said.

The governor told his viewing

He referred to a 1969 conference committee proposal to impose the sales tax on food. Smith told the 10 House members and senators on that committee that he would sign the food tax bill if it were passed. Senators approved the measure, but widespread public outcries forced the House to kill it.

If you pass this bill, I will approve it," Smith told the committee.

The governor also said he has always recommended budgets that were "significantly lower than those finally enacted by the legislature."

Smith said that once an appropriation bill is passed at the special session, he would open the session to other subjects.

He listed a statewide food stamp program, childhood development programs, repeal of a law requiring independent braking systems for trailers.

on, approximately the amount spent to film "The Last Picture probably not get another chance.

clarify issues concerning the campus environment.

Chinese short on curiosity, Kalb says

ron, according to CBS newsn Bernard Kalb's Great Issues sentation Wednesday.

States

GIVE

GIV

STANE

GIVI

SA

GIVE

87

GIVE

aking in the Memorial Stut Center Ballroom, Kalb said rican reporters who accomed President Richard Nixon hina were surprised by the all disinterest in American

This isn't unusual for the mese," said Kalb. "They have eat tradition of being prepied with themselves plus a in doing things for themwithout the help of out-cording to Kalb, reporters e been "China-watching" for rs trying to observe changes reactions in the Chinese e. He cited power purges, aganda, and the recent nge in attitude toward the as reasons for this watchful

There have been opportunities China and the Soviet Union ce disapproval of the bombof North Vietnam," he said. t the Chinese ping pong team kept its rendezvous in the ted States to help preserve rather than working ugh the narrower spectrum supporting Hanoi.

Thina realizes that with the sians knocking at their front with ballistic missiles it ds a friend to help calm Sinoiet relations."

alb commented that China's ital city, Peking, is not the dachrome slide" many people ke it to be.

It took us one hour to drive added.

iosity isn't killing the China the eighteen miles from the airport to Peking and during that time we saw many villages on the road, but very few people," said Kalb. "The people in these are held together by a Mao-attitude which is stark, regimented, and poor."

> The idea of the poorness of the Chinese people was a thought that stuck with Kalb as he traveled through China. He noticed, contrary to his earlier ideas, the Chinese were rich by their standards, which have progressed by leaps and bounds since the Communist takeover in 1949.

"Who has won since the Communists took over?" Kalk asked. "It would have to be the peasants, the 600 million people who were nowhere before Mao came into power."

Although Mao Tse-tung has offered the people a menu with a "choice of food," he hasn't given them one for thought, said Kalb. He continued saying it was amazing the amount of things achieved from the chaos that used to be.

"It was discouraging for some reporters to visit Peking University, once the greatest uni-versity in China," he said. It has been reopened after being shut down for several years after the takeover but only three courses are being offered in Chinese history, for example. We have more in American colleges today."

Kalb said human contact between the Chinese and non-Chinese is a businesslike relationship which is extremely insulated. The Chinese may seem self-sufficient but actually they like the look of the Western countries, he tacked structural motifs of other buildings, calling one a "bastard oriental" style.

The landscape architect cited the work done in the Law-Puryear quad as proof that his organization is responsive to the studentinterests in the environment. The residents "agreed to police the area themselves," noted Rucker.

dent will be real active but when where."

for the present. "They've torn up the front lawn of the MSC three times during the past two years," said Rucker.

A&M's soil is a big problem, noted Rucker. "We hauled in soil from the Brazos River in some places." The site for the campus was chosen because "if an agri-"We always want student input culture student can grow a plant but it is difficult to get. One stu- on this land, he can grow one any-

12 Vanity Fair finalists to contend for 1972 title

Twelve finalists have been selected to vie for the title of 1972 Vanity Fair announced Joe Arredondo, chairman of the selection committee.

The finalists are Virginia Ehrlich, Sara Hedrick, Martha Logan, Mary Kay Maedgen, Karen McKeel, Barbara Louise Neely, Anne Seifert, Jane Shortby, Candace Sliber, Lynn Svoboda, Eileen Urban and Margaret Wagner.

Three alternates were also chosen. These are Becky Myers, Donnelle Atkinson and Susie Heller.

The finalists were chosen from 47 entries by a fourteen member committee. Final selection of six Vanity Fair winners will be made by the people at the Student Publications Banquet April 28.

Legislation to end the Vietnam war exemplifies Democrats' determinism

Democrats, spurred by the renewed U.S. bombing of North scheduled another caucus for to-Vietnam, Wednesday moved toward their strongest action yet on end-the-war legislation.

At a party caucus the Democrats set the stage for adoption of a resolution calling for the fixing of a date to end U.S. ground and air involvement in Indochina, subject only to the release of American war prisoners.

Opponents succeeded in delay-

WASHINGTON (AP) - House ing final action Wednesday, but the party leadership promptly day, although the caucus normally meets only once a month.

> Antiwar Democrats expressed confidence their resolution will be adopted if a majority of the 256 House Democrats show up so the caucus can function.

University National Bank "On the side of Texas A&M." -Adv.