THE BATTALION

No. 119

Friday, March 23, 1979 College Station, Texas

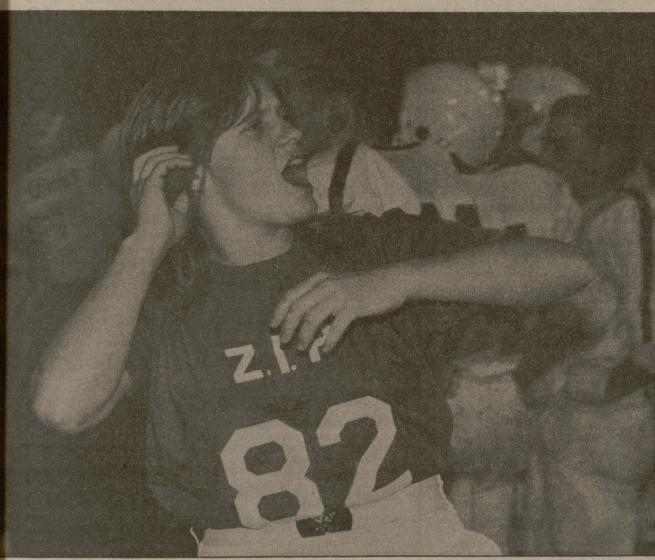

News Dept. 845-2611 Business Dept. 845-2611

How valid was critical column?

- A Texas A&M official responds to Jack Anderson's column criticizing the treatment of women in the Corps of Cadets — and he doesn't give Anderson much credibility. See page 3. Also see page 2 for comment on the story.

- People injure and kill 40 percent of the young birds of prey that die each year, and a Texan spends his own time and money to heal as many birds as he can. See page 10.

- Is it just coincidence, or are you PSYCHIC? See page 6.

'Aaaaayyyyeee!'

Battalion photo by Lee Roy Leschper Jr.

for organized research, which was cut

Moody College President Bill Clayton

said growth at the Galveston campus necessitates more facilities. If given the needed dorms and classrooms, he predicted, the college's enrollment of about

Prairie View A&M, said this is the time for a "bold leap forward" at the predominantly black campus. The $6.5 million recommended by the Higher Ed Committee includes a $3.7 million facility for nursing students and major repairs at the campus.

Dr. Alvin I. Thomas, president of 700 would double in two years.

position of yell leader at Texas A&M took a shape Thursday night. Freshman Kim Manan Army ROTC cadet in the W-1 unit, was the first woman ever to be a Texas A&M yell leader. She was one of five freshmen "yell-leaders" at Thursday's Elephant Bowl game.

rouble with a capital T? — maybe

House group hears A&M

By LIZ NEWLIN

TIN — Texas A&M University extrouble in the House Appropria-Committee hearing Thursday. Trou-out its use of the Permanent Univer-

Senfronia Thompson, D-Houston, g charged that the campus at Colation is not sharing fairly with the at Prairie View the System's part roceeds from the endowment.

e weeks ago, at a hearing of a subttee of the House Higher Education ittee. Texas A&M officials were sequestioned about the fund's distriand possible neglect of Prairie rsday the "results" of that hearing hat the Higher Ed Committee recended to the Appropriations Com-e — were available. The most signifilange the committee made was addout $6.5 million for new construcnd renovation for Prairie View.

se committees cannot significantly distribution of Permanent Univerund (PUF) income, but Thompson troduced legislation that would force stem to give Prairie View the money lish the endowment altogether. University of Texas and Texas A&M ns split income from the PUF, which nstitutionally established endowpased on land holdings in West chief clerk of the Higher Ed Com-George Torres, said Thursday that son has declined to schedule hearn the bills. He also noted that legissometimes introduce legislation

One of Thompson's administrative aides explained Thursday in the Capitol that she also said more funds should be allocated is also waiting for the HEW to release its report on higher education in Texas. drastically last time the Legislature appro-Thompson has suggested she knows the priated funds. conclusion of the report, which was researched last year, and that it may alter PUF distribution.

But no one at Texas A&M knows for Thompson, a member of the committee, directed most of her questions Thursday toward the PUF, but it is hard to predict the effect on other committee members.

Her impact — or lack of it — will be one factor when the committee draws up the general appropriations bill for the House. ometime in April that bill and a similar bill in the Senate will be debated, comromised and sent to the governor, proba-

Thursday was the last official chance for the 11-part Texas A&M System to justify its requests for money.

Clyde H. Well, chairman of the Board of Regents and acting chancellor, directed the presentation. Much of the four-hour session was dull but mostly important recitation of figures and justification.

Several legislators and spectators nap-

The hearing was delayed from 10 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. by a speech by the Rev. Jesse Jackson, who emphasized the need for education spending.

Wells and most other System representatives said more of that spending should be on low salaries. Inflation has been devastating, he said, and has eroded professors' buying power.

Dr. Jarvis Miller, president of Texas A&M, said the growth of the school has of Davis case to Bryan "that little squirt" and "a wet-eared fool prosecutor having no respect for anyone." Strickland was unavailable for comment United Press International A district judge — angry about an intrusion by the Tarrant County district attorney's office into his courtroom affairs signing of the injunction. Thursday said he might move the divorce "He could have worked it out with me case of Texas millionaire T. Cullen Davis very well that after I'd made a decision in and his socialite wife, Priscilla, from Fort Worth to Bryan, his central Texas the case I'd have give him the whole record," Barron told a reporter Wednesday. hometown. socalled responsible lawyer do." Munn also claimed the district attor-

Barron threatens move

Meeting with Davis' battery of attorneys and reporters in the front room of his Bryan home, District Judge John M. Barron also said he would not tolerate any more "interference" from either a special Tarrant County grand jury investigating Davis' financial dealings or members of the district attorney's office.

Barron then signed a restraining order barring the district attorney's office "or anyone else from interfering with this trial" and indicated he would move the bitter, longrunning case to Bryan if both parties agreed to the change and if an available courtroom could be found in the Brazos County courthouse.

But Mrs. Davis' attorney, contacted in Fort Worth, said there was "no way" he would agree to the trial move. And even Barron admitted there was little possibility of finding an available courtroom.

After signing the injunction, Barron told reporters: "Goodbye, I'm going rabbit

The divorce trial was thrown into an immediate recess Thursday when the retired judge, appointed as presiding judge after Fort Worth Judge Joe Eidson withdrew from the bitter 6-year case, failed to appear in court.

I'm not going to put up with this," the normally goodhumored judge told reporters after Assistant District Attorney Jack Strickland subpoenaed thousands of pages of records of the divorce trial Wed-

"I'll go back to Bryan and hunt rabbits." A court spokesman said that's apparently what the judge did. He disappeared from his Fort Worth hotel room and remained unavailable by telephone in

At one point, Barron said he was going to declare a mistrial, but that threat subsided with his failure to appear court.

Barron's courtroom humor had been one of the few bright spots in the five weeks of tedious proceedings in the case reportedly involving millions of dollars in community property. But the witticism turned to criticism when Strickland appeared in court saying he needed the fi-nancial records for a Wednesday afternoon meeting of a special grand jury.

The subpoena said the information was sought in connection with the murderfor-hire charge against Davis.

Davis, who was acquitted of murder two years ago, was tried earlier this year for soliciting the death of his previous divorce court judge, Joe Eidson, but that trial ended with a deadlocked jury.

Barron, who said he would have gladly turned over the divorce trial records once the trial was over, apparently was offended by the intrusion and later called Strickland "But he comes up there and just kicks us around like we were a bunch of dogs." The reaction in the Priscilla and Cullen

Davis camps was one of surprise. "I did not know it was going to happen, said Ronald Aultman, Mrs. Davis' attorney. Aultman said "as a matter of ethics" he preferred to withhold further comment until "I know what the judge is going to

But one of Davis' attorneys, Cecil Munn, presented motions to Administra-tive Judge Charles Murray Thursday after Barron failed to show in court, asking that the divorce trial be moved to Bryan -Barron's hometown — and that the district attorney "and everyone else" be enjoined from interrupting the case "for whatever

Munn and two other attorneys then drove to Barron's house and local re-porters were called to witness Barron's

'I don't know what his (Strickland) motive was, but it was extremely abusive to the judicial process," Munn said. "This stunt that Jack Strickland pulled was about the most stupid thing I've ever seen a ney's office was trying to sabotage the di-

Strickland told reporters Wednesday he asked for the records because he felt there was a "significant" chance not all the information would be available if he waited until after the trial ended.

"I was very respectful to that judge, as I would be to any judge," he said. "I don't have anything against the judge, person-

Judge Murray said he had contacted Barron and that the Bryan judge indicated he was willing to resume the case Monday

$5 health fee increase likely

Maintaining competitiveness in the local health care job market, and thus the qualty of services provided, is the rationale behind a student government request for the creation of a new health center fee, according to Dr. John Koldus, Texas A&M University's vice president for student services.

The new $5 compulsory medical service fee is needed "to maintain the current level of services," Koldus said.

The proposal for the new fee is currently in the form of a senate recommendation to Koldus, but he is expected to approve it in time for next year's fee assessment.

The University's A.P. Beutel Health

Center has been operating at a deficit since 1973, he added. However, funds in reserve enabled the center to operate with

Also helpful was the fact that the health center has in the past had problems in fill-ing its budgeted staff positions.

However, Koldus said, the University recently lost $60,000 to $80,000 per year because the center no longer receives the money to provide mandatory University Workmen's Compensation physicals. The physicals are no longer mandatory, and the University has thus cut off their funds.

More money was needed, Koldus said, to attract good quality people into the Texas A&M health center. The former salary of $29,000 "wasn't too competitive for physicians," he said. President Jarvis Miller recently approved a $38,000 ceiling on physicians' salaries designed to attract more doctors to Texas A&M.

'However, it is not mandatory to employ someone at a base salary of $38,000. A physician with less experience would be employed at less than $38,000," he added.

Nurses' salaries have also been increased to provide more competition, Koldus said.

Many students had believed the current $15 compulsory group hospital fee charged at Texas A&M was the ceiling, set by state law. Koldus said this was true, but that another section of the Texas Education Code allows the University to charge another fee, the compulsory medical service fee. The ceiling for that fee also is $15, Koldus said.

"The fees are not by law going into the same place, but they are tied," he said. "In terms of operations, I don't see how they can separate the two, which is what they are doing legislatively."

Koldus said the comptroller of the University System had wanted a $10 increase.

"But I thought that would be too much," he said.

The current fee charged by the University brings in about $850,000 per year, Koldus said. The projected increase when the new fee is implemented will be onethird of that, or about $280,000, he added.

"I hope the fee will meet the needs for the next three years. I hope we don't have to raise it again for a good long time," Koldus said. "The problem is keeping pace with inflation.

intending it should be passed. The penalized it because the scheme used to figure 80-85 percent of the budget has not re statements of where they stand, Aggieland, Battalion seeking next editors cations are now being accepted for fice; at least one year of experience in a er and fall editorships of The Battal-d for 1979-80 editorship of the Agd for 1979-80 editorship of the Agplications forms are available from Battalion summer editor will serve May 14 through August 22, 1979. Battalion fall semester editor will from April 23, 1979, through Deer 1979 (with the exception of the

nust be returned to Bob G. Rogers, nan of the Student Publications

Room 301 Reed McDonald Build-

Aggieland editor will serve for the able yearbook experience elsewhere. ic year 1979-80.

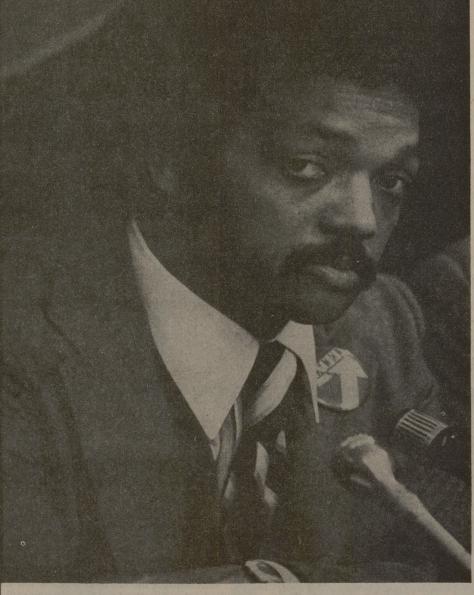

king office and during the term of of- 301.

or at least one year of editorial experience on a commerical newspaper, or at least 12 hours of journalism including Journalism 203, 204 or equivalent.

The 12 hours of journalism must include completion of journalism law or enrollment in the course during the semester

Qualifications for editor of the Aggieland are: 2.0 overall and major GPR at the time of taking office and during the term of office; at least one year in a responsible staff position on the Aggieland or compar-

The Student Publications Board will alifications for editor of The Battalion interview candidates and select the editors 2.0 overall and major GPR at the time on April 5 at 5:15 p.m. in Reed McDonald

The Rev. Jesse Jackson appeared before the Texas Legislature Thurs-

Jackson preaches hope, not dope in joint session

United Press International AUSTIN — The Rev. Jesse

Jackson, leading a cheer of "down with dope, up with hope," com-manded legislators at a joint House-Senate session Thursday to regain their moral authority and search for a higher vision. "It's not so much the strength of our eyes, but where we stand and what we see," Jackson told the legislators, the state's governor and a packed gallery, who came to hear his speech supporting education and

The civil rights leader led the legislators in a recitation of a former black power chant that said in part "I am somebody, I am God's child. Down with dope, up with hope, no one can protect us from ourselves. I can learn anything, I am God's Jackson, 37, is leader of Operation Push. He described the program as "a human rights organization that tends to be the voice of the underpriviliged and unrepresented." Another program led by Jackson, EXCEL, is the educational arm of Operation Push and is aimed to encourage youths to stay in school and improve their lives.

"Education costs — it does cost," Jackson said. "But ignorance costs even more.

He compared the cost of a fourear public college education at $20,000 to the cost of imprisonment for four years at $50,000 to $126,000.

Education and employment costs less than ignorance and incarceration. Schools at their worst are better than prisons at their best.'

Jackson urged the lawmakers to guard against the backlash of tax relief amendments - which he labeled neo-conservative — that might damage educational programs.

"This is fundamentally based panic," upon a sense of economic panic," the gray-suited leader said. "These people say: 'We're going to lead a tax rebellion,' while the fact is we need a tax reform." He added that giant corporations are paying less taxes than before, while citizens are paying more. Jackson was introduced to the joint session by Rep. Al Edwards, D-Houston, who told reporters he invited the minister to address the Legislature because crucial education bills will be discussed this session and he is concerned over their success. Edwards said legislation has been introduced to get state funding for Operation Push and

He said 60 percent of the nation's students are bused and only 6 percent for racial reasons. He said stopping busing would greatly harm students, especially rural children.

"He was one of the great visionaries of the 20th century, perhaps of our nation," Jackson said of the former president. "He could rise above the trees and see the forest of human rights.'

Jackson was not as approving of other presidents, particularly President Carter, accusing him of ignor-ing the mandate to be a visionary of human rights and claiming "It appears cataracts have set in.

The educator recommended voter registration certificates be distributed with high school diplomas to encourage young citizen involvement in government.