

The Black Forest

"I couldn't ask my husband to support my family," Adams said. "Not that he wouldn't have, it's just that he didn't make enough money."
Adams attributes her success at finding customers, despite her location, to good food and good service. She makes the food from scratch, even down to the mayonnaise for the salad dress-a local woman who has become a hardships of war are very real to the media. But the with their only knowledge stem- comprehensible to most people. The horrors of war are in-
Reporter
By CATHY RIELY

Trudie Adams prepares Chicken Kiev for her evening customers.