Mattox taunts GOP opposition

Associated Press

acquittal have pumped up his politi-cal muscle, Monday came close to announcing a re-election bid and dared Republicans to mount a campaign against him.

The political campaign trail has been strewn with the bodies of Republicans that thought they could unseat me," Mattox said. "I suspect I'll have opposition. Tell them to put up their money.

The 12-year political veteran, who last week was found innocent of a commercial bribery charge, said he isn't yet ready to formally announce his plans. But when asked during a news conference whether he would seek re-election, Mattox said, "I think there's a great likelihood of that tak-George Strake of Houston, who said to challenge Mattox.

Noting that Strake lost a bid for lieutenant governor in 1982, Mattox

the GOP will have a solid candidate ready spoken what they think of Mr. AUSTIN — Attorney General Strake and his capabilities toward state government. I'm not at all concerned about it.

In the trial, Mattox was accused of threatening to withhold his approval of public bonds prepared by the Fulbright & Jaworski law firm unless one of its lawyers, who represented Mobil Oil Corp. in an oil rights case, stopped trying to question his sister. Mattox said Monday he is convinced his legal troubles were due to the efforts of Mobil and their Fulbright & Jaworski lawyer to win that oil rights suit. The case was settled last year, with Mobil returning nearly 15,000 acres of land to the state, a settlement Mattox valued at $100 million.

The main lesson (from his trial) is that a big oil company and a big law firm will be even more treachering place."

He also ridiculed a pledge from when we got into the fight," Mattox state Republican Party Chairman said. "I think we have taught them a lesson they will not quickly forget.'

> However, Mattox said, he has written both Mobil and Fulbright & Jaworski to assure them that his of-fice holds no grudge.

Half of dead drivers drunk, study says

Associated Press

A study of autopsy reports on traffic accident victims from 10 Texas counties says that half of the drivers killed were legally drunk, more than twice the percent previously re-

Olga Pendleton, a researcher at the Texas Transportation Institute, said that accident reports show that alcohol was a factor in 21 percent of the fatal accidents in the 10 counties, but that autopsy reports show the number should be 51 percent.

"There is apparently more drinking and driving going on out there than accident reports would lead us to believe," said Pendleton.

Pendleton said her study compared blood alcohol concentrations pared blood alcohol concentrations from autopsies with corresponding accident reports. Autopsies for 558 fatally injured drivers were exam-

"We found that 66 percent of the through Wednesday are the days safest from drunken drivers, she accident reports on DWI drivers did not show alcohol as a contributing factor," she said. "We also found that the average blood alcohol concentration of all 558 fatalities was 0.11, exceeding the legal limit of Pendleton said her studies showed that the average blood alcohol concentration for fatally injured drivers was highest in October. Monday

Studies showed that 66 percent of all drivers killed between 11 p.m. and 3 a.m. were legally drunk she

'The proportion of legally intoxicated driver fatalities ranged from the highest of 55.4 percent in Travis County to 39.4 percent in Tarrant County," she said
