Aggies to form support group

By DIANA HENSKA Reporter

Though there are no whales in Bryan-College Station, the Greenpeace Coalition believes there are other environmental problems that need to be addressed.

Texas A&M students are starting a coalition supporting Greenpeace, an organization that holds non-violent protests in the name of ecology.

"We are needed in every corner of the planet," said Lucia Athens, president of the A&M Greenpeace Coalition.

The group plans to investigate areas involving toxic waste, nuclear action and wildlife preservation, she said.

Athens said the coalition is "a network of people, a network of information." Group members share information and ideas for action and education of the public.

At the group's meeting tonight in 401 Rudder at 8:30, the coalition will present "The Ultimate Environmental Issue," a slide show addressing the issue of nuclear action.

Greenpeace originated in British Columbia in 1971 to oppose atomic bomb testing in Alaska.

Supporters also stopped France from testing in the South Pacific, and encouraged the passage of three U.N. resolutions to end all nuclear weapons testing.

The international Greenpeace organization acts as a consultant to the United Nations. Members also are active lobbyists to Congress. Because of the group's lobbying, the Senate recently passed legislation calling for the immediate resolution of the United States and Soviet test-ban treaty negotiations.

The Greenpeace Coalition relies heavily on research to support their actions.

Cameras record stabbing fatality

Associated Press

ROSHARON — Videotape cameras recorded the fatal stabbing of a 21-year-old Texas prison inmate Tuesday, the seventh killed this year in violence within the nation's second largest prison system, authorities said.

Calvin Clay Massey, serving a seven-year sentence for burglary of a habitation in Tarrant County, was stabbed eight times in the throat, forehead and chest, said Texas Department of Corrections spokesman Phil Guthrie.

The knifing occurred about 8:35 a.m. in the day room at the TDC's Darrington Unit, about 25 miles south of Houston, Guthrie said.

The incident was recorded by video cameras installed a month ago at the unit, Guthrie said. Prison officials are trying to determine whether the cameras will help reduce inmate violence.

"For the past month, officials at the Darrington Unit have been taping the activities in this area," Guthrie said. "The inmates were fully aware that their activities were being taped."

The latest attack occurred while Massey and a 29-year-old inmate were waiting to be searched and returned to their cells in the administrative segregation section of the prison, Guthrie said.

The suspect, who is serving a 9-year sentence for burglary of a habitation in Harris County, pulled an 8-inch piece of flat metal sharpened to a point and a 5-inch metal rod and attacked Massey, he said.

Prison officials said there was no apparent motive for the stabbing. "The two had been exercising together for about a month without any apparent animosity," Guthrie said.

Guthrie said both inmates were kept in administrative segregation because each had a history of "combative behavior."

The Brazoria County sheriff's department also is investigating the incident, which will be referred to a grand jury, Guthrie said.
