While most Aggies were relaxing during spring break, 10 members of the Memorial Student Center Political Forum traveled to Washington, D.C. where they broke doughnuts with congressmen and stood only yards away from President Ronald Reagan. The first morning in Washington, Soviet leader Konstantin U. Cher-nenko died. The students questioned each Washington official they visited about the new Soviet leadership and received various responses to their inquiries.

Representatives of the Central In-telligence Agency said Mikhail Gor-bachev will be an asset in establishing peace between the United States and the Soviet Union. Senator Lloyd Bentsen said he thought Gorbachev's policies will be radically different, yet not necessar-ily harsher, than past Soviet leaders.

Bentsen also said the United States will have to adjust to Gorba-chev's tough policies. Fred McClure, special assistant to the president and a former Texas A&M student holy president soid it

A&M student body president, said it was too early to make a judgment about the new Soviet leadership. Sam Donaldson, ABC White House correspondent, said in an informal meeting that Reagan has al-ways despised the Soviet Union and referred to its people as "the dark force.

Donaldson said he did not expect Reagan to suddenly change his mind and support disarmament and peace with the Soviets - even with Gorbachev at the helm of Soviet power.

Donaldson also said Gorbachev believes in power through strength which will make him a tough man to work with.

After listening to the speakers, the Political Forum members formed their own opinions about the situation. "It's sounds like the new leadership is a step in the right direc-tion," said sophomore Yvonne Green, "yet I think the people in Washington, D.C. are still as wary about the situation as they were before.

One person who was not wary about Gorbachev was Eugene Zykov of the Soviet Information Center.

Zykov said the Soviets are working hard to establish a democracy and a country free from persecution.

During the seven-day visit to the capital, Political Forum members also toured the Pentagon, the Cen-tral Intelligence Agency, the Smith-sonian Institute and the Hungarian and Israeli embassies.

Cathy Hay, Special Events Coordinator for Congressman Joe Barton and a former MSC Political Forum chairman, arranged for the students to meet with Barton.

Barton commented on the politi-cal activity of A&M students. "It's safe to say Texas A&M is the most politically active university in the nation," he said. "The University has 85 percent of its population vot-ing Republican. In the last national election, 8,000 out of 10,000 registered voters actually voted.'

After a discussion on current events, photographs were taken with the students and their congressmen. These photographs will be sent to the students hometown newspapers. On Friday, the students met and talked with UPI reporter Helen Thomas.

Due to the efforts of Thomas and McClure, the students stood behind the press line in a special Presidential St. Patrick's Day shamrock ceremony.

During the ceremony, Reagan, the Irish ambassador and a large group of Girl Scouts exchanged shamrocks and Girl Scout cookies.

Advisor Jane Glendening said she satisfied with the trip's outcome.

"A trip like that is a valuable experience for everyone," Glendening
