Future looking bleak for Bosnia's stability

The Associated Press

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina — Immense war damage and the threat of chronic political instability leave Bosnia with a bleak future as the ministe envisioned in an international peace plan.

When peace talks broke down in Geneva last week, President Alija Izetbegovic asserted Serbs and Croats were refusing concessions that would make a new, smaller Bosnia economically and politically viable.

Without that, there is little hope for the future, and without stability, economists say, there is little hope for the future.

"As a legal, independent, recognized country the new Bosnian republic has no chance of surviving," said Ibrahim Colakhodzic, the economist in charge of the government development program.

As the peace plan now stands, the new Bosnia would cover 31 percent of its prewar territory. The Serbs and Croats, who together control 90 percent of the country, would get 52 percent and 17 percent, respectively. Sarajevo would come under temporary U.N. administration.

The future Bosnia would include most industrialized parts of the former Yugoslav republic. But displaced people would nearly double the population in those areas to around 2 million.

The prewar economy was based on coal mining, electrical generation, steel mills, aluminum foundries, chemical plants and farming. The sector left to the Bosnian government accounted for 29 percent of the 1990 gross national product and about 30 percent of the jobs, Colakhodzic said.

Somali militia ambush, kill seven Nigerian peacekeepers

The Associated Press

MOGADISHU, Somalia — Seven Nigerian soldiers were killed in a militia ambush Sunday as they went to the aid of other U.N. peacekeepers surrounded by a mob of stone-throwing Somalis, a U.S. official said.

An unidentified Somali diplomat attached to the U.S. liaison office in Mogadishu was shot in the chest after he and five colleagues apparently stumbled onto the ambush, the official said. The diplomat was later listed in fair to good condition at an American military hospital.

The U.N. forces later struck back with a helicopter attack in Mogadishu, NBC News reported.

The attack on the Nigerians was the deadliest assault on U.N. peacekeepers in Somalia since June, when 24 Pakistani soldiers died. Seven other Nigerian soldiers were wounded Sunday, and one may have been captured.

In New York, U.N. Secretary-General Boutros-Ghali deplored the deaths, and said they demonstrated "the urgent need" to disarm all of Somalia's factions.

Retired Adm. Jonathan Howe, the U.N. special envoy to Somalia, called the ambush a "wanton, unprovoked and premeditated attack"

'I desire to pray and forgive' Pope to settle conflicts with Russian Church

The Associated Press

VILNIUS, Lithuania — Pope John Paul II reached out Sunday to the Russian Orthodox Church, and warned against the revival of ancient European divisions and a desire to avenge modern-day oppression.

John Paul II

On the second day of his visit to this Roman Catholic stronghold of the former Soviet Union, the pope also went out of his way to send greetings to Moscow.

The pontiff differed with the 60-million-member Russian Orthodox Church, which made its own gesture by sending an envoy to Vilnius.

The Russian church has accused the Vatican of overzealous missionary activity in Russia, dealing a major setback to the pontiff's goal of a united, more "Christian" Europe in the post-Communist era.

The pope began his day Sunday by paying tribute to Lithuania's suffering during 50 years of Soviet occupation.

He prayed at the tombs of 18 people killed by tanks and gunfire during the 1991 uprising against Soviet power, and lauded the quest for freedom that "refused to bend before the dark and relentless waves of a violence that ignored God and debased humanity."

But, he added, "I desire to pray and forgive." "The temptation for revenge, he said, "always leads into useless labyrinths of hatred."

The pope warned against "sinister new adventures, undertaken under the blind impulse of ideologies, of national pride and of willful refusal to acknowledge human dignity."

The pope's words come at a time of strained relations between Moscow and the former Soviet Baltic republics of Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia. Disputes center on the pace of Soviet troop withdrawals and the rights of the ethnic Russian minority, especially in Estonia. The pontiff also will visit Latvia and Estonia on his seven-day tour.

Moscow annexed the three Baltic republics in 1940 in a secret agreement with Nazi Germany. The Vatican and many Western countries refused to recognize the annexation. The republics regained independence in 1992 after the Soviet collapse.

Bronislovas Roldauskas' 22-year-old son Rolandas was killed when Red Army tanks rolled into a crowd of pro-independence demonstrators outside the Vilnius TV station on Jan. 13, 1991. He called the pope's visit to the cemetery a "great honor for the dead," but added: "You cannot forgive murders, but only murderers."

The pope later celebrated an open-air Mass in a driving rain, speaking in Lithuanian, Polish and Russian to underline the scope of his message.
