A&M cornerback Glenn awaiting aerial assault in Lubbock

By Michael Plumer

THE BATTALION

Texas A&M senior cornerback Aaron Glenn has been diligently counting the days until he can claim retribution for a past misdeed.

Last season at Kyle Field, Red Raider senior wide receiver Lloyd Hill burned Glenn on an out-and-up move resulting in a 41-yard touchdown reception in the third quarter.

Glenn said that even though A&M won the game, 19-17, he has been patiently awaiting the individual rematch.

"I can not wait until the game starts because that catch has been haunting me," Glenn said. "It was the first time I had been beat since high school."

After the touchdown, Glenn said Hill had a few friendly words to help boost Glenn's confidence.

"We talked to each other on the field during the game but it was not anything bad," Glenn said. "I would ask him if he was ready and he would say the same thing to me."

"When he caught that ball, he told me it was the first of many to come. We shall see on Saturday if that holds true."

A&M defensive coordinator Bob Davie said Glenn has played outstanding this year against some stiff competition but his most difficult opponents are yet to come.

"Aaron has not been tested so far this year like he will be against Hill," Davie said. "That touchdown last year was a character builder for him. Now, he has had a year to mature and I think he matches up pretty well."

As if Glenn needed anymore prodding, Hill is 57 yards away from becoming the Southwest Conference's pass receiving leader in total yards.

The record is presently held by Emanuel Tolbert of Southern Methodist.

"He's not going to break the record on me," Glenn said. "In fact, I don't think he can break it on any of our defensive backs because we have been playing well."

"The way we will set our defense up is whatever side Hill lines up on, that is who will cover him. So if he lines up on (sophomore) Ray Mickens, then Ray will cover him."

"There will be no problems." When Glenn trots out of the defensive huddle to line up against Hill, he will be facing a wide receiver some have described as a Michael Irvin clone.

Texas A&M cornerback Aaron Glenn (31) is off and running on his 76-yard punt return for a touchdown against the Missouri Tigers at Kyle Field on September 16. Fellow defensive back Andre Williams (26) is trailing the play as Missouri punter Kyle Pooler (19) prepares to eat some turf. The Aggies return to action Saturday in Lubbock against the Texas Tech Red Raiders.

Glenn said Hill exhibits the same kind of characteristics the Dallas Cowboy's Irvin does.

"Lloyd is tall and physical and he tries to overpower defensive backs," Glenn said. "He tries to take away our inside position. The key to stopping him is not to let him be the one in charge."

"You have to take charge."

Hill said Glenn is capable of doing that.

"I would describe Glenn as one of the best cover guys in the nation," Hill said. "What he lacks in size he makes up for in speed."

"He makes it difficult for you to run your routes." Glenn has also made it hard on opposing special teams. In A&M's 73-0 rout of Missouri, Glenn returned three punts for 131 yards, breaking the 123-yard mark Rod Harris set in 1987 against Louisiana Tech.

One of the punt returns was a 76-yard third quarter jaunt for a touchdown. Glenn said the punt returns are a way to get back at the opposition for not throwing more to his side.

"I try to do what I can on special teams because they set the tone for the game," Glenn said. "I can make a highlight film on punt returns because of the isolation that is involved."

"If I can get through their 11 guys and score it is a great feeling because there is a sense of accomplishment in doing that."

Some sports movies that reflect real life

The summer movies over and over and the Christmas movie season is not yet begun so the studios are releasing movies that may be familiar to most moviegoers.

Money for Nothing (★★★) — The story of an agent who coaches Doug Flutie and Greg Swindell whose signing with the Houston Astros parlayed into "pennant race" hoopla in the city. Instead, the new millionaires disappoint everybody with a combined 20-30 record and thereby firing owner Drayton McLane to manager Art Howe. General manager Bill Wood then announces at pop superstar Joey Lawrence will manage the team in 1994.

Boxing Helena (★★★) — Pernell "Sweet Pea" Whitaker and Julio Caez move their title rematch to the capital of Montana in accordance with the NAFTA agreement. Charles, Stevie Wonder and Ron Milsap also return to judge the fight.

Dazed and Confused (★) — This documentary on Oiler head coach Dick Pardee follows him from the first he took over the underachieving team to last week's pathetic showing against the L.A. Rams. A sharp viewer can see that Pardee desperately wants to make the Oilers a winning team but has trouble remembering that to say or if he's the coach or did
