"The money is to make the service pay for itself, rather than using taxes," Gage said.

Also, telemarketing firms are required to purchase the list from the state.

Another provision of the law is another list, the Electronic No-Call List. This list prevents forms of electronic advertising such as through a fax machine. The fee for this service is $2.55 per telephone number for five years. For both services it is $4.80 for five years.

Once a number is added to the list, companies have 30 days to add it to their own lists. So far, 145,000 residents submitted their numbers for the phone list and 120,000 for the electronic list. The first version of the list will be available to companies to purchase in April and will be in effect by July.

Solomons said now that Texas has the No-Call Law, California is considering a nationwide no-call law.

"Texas has the second largest population in the United States and is pretty conservative. If Texas can pass [a no-call law], Congress is sure they can too," he said.

what each one did in the pathway. Once we found how each gene worked, then put them back together in a test tube."

Genetically engineered vitamin accelerates the maturation process of the red blood cells. Using this system, scientists will eventually be able to increase the amount of B-12 they produce, Scott said.

"By mimicking nature's pathways for synthesizing vitamin B-12, we can make it in amounts only possible by our own capabilities," Emile A. Schweikert, professor and head of the Department of Chemistry.

The vitamin, which is naturally found in meats, is essential to the body's production of red blood cells. A lack of B-12 can lead to anemia, Scott said.

During his 25 years at A&M, graduate students benefited from observing participating in Scott's traditional method of experimentation, Schweikert said.

Scott attributes much of his success to the graduate students he worked with in his laboratory.

"It was really a team effort, so this is just as much an award as it is mine," Scott said.

Scott has also been honored with the Royal Society of Edinburgh's Queen Medal, has been appointed a Robert A. Welch Foundation Fellow in Chemistry.

"Dr. Scott has had a long career and his international recognition has attracted some of the best students to study with him," Schweikert said.
