parking for all commuters, Neuman said. Penberthy Road, extended from Reed to George Bush Drive with West Campus, PTTS is doing what accommodate students the changes, Bisor said. "Even though changes are convenient for students, it's not convenient for the change," he said. The University has agreed with the City of Station to lease 250 spaces in the College parking garage. These are being offered to residents, and faculty members who are on the garage waiting list. They are leased at the same rate as other on-campus garages. Accommodations will continue to be made for the next few semesters until construction begins. The repair of Street, New Main to Ross Street is currently underway and is not scheduled for completion until 2003, Bisor said. Additional projects are being planned for May and June. "I used to think that will create a temporary sure of Spence Street, closing of various faculty lots.

Schuyler Houser said she vetoed a bill passed two weeks ago that would have added responsibilities to the job of student body president. Under the legislation, the student body president or his or her appointed representative would have to attend a Northside and Southside student forum every fall. Houser said she was afraid the bill would bind future student body presidents to a schedule they may not be able to keep.

special at Reed on April 15. Reed Arena will hold Muster on April 21 and the Franklin Graham Ministries May 2-5. Along with the A&M commencement exercises in May, some high schools have booked graduations. But with all the events planned for spring, expenses involved with maintaining the building are also expected to rise, Hodge said. Hodge said operating expenses for Reed

NEWS IN BRIEF

Detainees' hunger strike continues

GUANTANAMO BAY NAVAL BASE, Cuba (AP) — Twenty-one detainees refused lunch at this remote U.S. base Thursday, the ninth day of a hunger strike that is on the wane. Twenty-three captives declined breakfast and 21 refused lunch — down from a high of 194 who refused food a week before, said Coast Guard Lt. Cmdr. Jeff Carter, a spokesperson. Brig. Gen. Mike Lehnert, the camp commander, has called it a "rolling hunger strike," saying detainees take turns not eating. Three men have not eaten since at least Friday, when the military began keeping count. The military has administered intravenous drips to 20 at the camp to treat them for dehydration or undernourishment. The hunger strike began on Feb. 27 after guards stripped an inmate of his turban, but participants have told their captors their primary concern is what will happen to them.

increase each year with employee raises, utility costs and other miscellaneous expenses. The expected operating expense for 2002 is $2 million, up from $1.7 million in 2001.

Hodge said the expenses spent for operating Reed Arena are very common for A&M's market size. Big shows like "Disney on Ice" bring in revenue, but until the deficit is lowered, Reed is still in trouble. "A deficit for an arena the size of Reed is to be expected," Hodge said. "The goal is not to necessarily make money, but rather break even." "The arena business is cyclical and spotty, but this is no surprise," Hodge said.
