A First Class Article.

By JOE, but haven't we a DAZEY first class this year. GEE whiz, but just look ATT 'em, and let us know what you think they're WORTH. You might tell us HOWELL they could rise enMASSY as FRANK and ERNEST as they are with their gallant ROSSter of officers and destroy any FORT or ROB the enemy of their STAPLES. The music of their HARPER would ALECKtrify them to such an extent that FOWLER work would be something they could not possibly do. They could SEYMOUR points of attack that the opposing troops would soon PETER out. Their general good conduct has never been DOCKed by the use of TODDy--they have never had occasion to FEEL LICKS from the ROD of correction—an EDucation they have dilligently sought—never a time but that they ROSE above the filth and MEYER of superstition and vice.

In a word, they always HUGH to the line and have never allowed a mere SEWEL to turn them from their onward career of usefulness so that now, after all their years of toil they are gradually graduating into graduation.

Major Vroom's Report.

The following is the body of the last report of Major R. D. Vroom, referring to the inspection made at the College on May 22nd, 1893:

To the Inspector General, United States Army, Washington, D. C .:

SIR:-I have the honor to submit the following report of an inspection of the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas, made May 22nd and 23rd, 1893:

The President of the College is ex-Governor L. S. Ross. The government is vested in a Board of Directors, consisting of five members, appointed by the Governor of the state. The members of the Board are appointed from different sections of the state and hold office for six years, or during good behavior and until their successors are qualified. The College is nonsectarian. The number of College buildings is twenty-four, including Professors' residences and principal farm buildings. The requirements of law are met, the institution being prepared to teach annually 225 students. The military department was established October 4th, 1876, when the College was formally opened, and the detail has been continued since. The milita.y course is popular with the students, satisfactory to the Faculty and receives proper support from the College authorities. In determining class standing, or relative standing on graduation, the military course is given the same weight as other departments. The professor of military science and tactics is First Lieutenant, Benjamin C. Morse, 18th Infantry, who has been on duty at the College since September 27th, 1890. The military professor resides at the College and is provided with quarters on the same terms as other professors.

He is a member of the Faculty, with all the rights, privileges and authority of other heads of departments. In addition to his other duties, he performs those of Commandant of Cadets. The military organization is a battalion of four companies. The battalion staff consists of one First Lieutenant and Adjutant, one First Lieutenant and Quartermaster, one First Lieutenant and Private Secretary, one Sergeant Major and one Quartermaster Sergeant. Each company has one captain, one first and one second lieutenant, one first sergeant, four sergeants and five corporals. There is no separate artillery company, but a select company for special drill, known as the "Ross Volunteers." There is a drum corps service which is voluntary. A band is not maintained. Officers and non-commissioned officers are appointed by the President, upon the recommendation of the commandant of cadets. Commissioned officers are appointed from the first or senior class; sergeants from the second, and corporals from the third class. The uniform consists of grey blouse, gray trousers with black stripe and grey forage cap. Rank is designated by shoulder straps with chevrons, as in the United States army. The national color is carried by the battalion: The number of students in attendance at date of inspection was 215, of whom 213 were in the military department. All of the military students in the military department live at the College and all but three are over fifteen years of age. The discipline of the students is very good and is maintained by
