

Some of them will be published in every issue, which will be quite an interesting item. We wish him success.

Cadet Corp. Dirr, who fell from a window in Ross Hall, is in Buffalo, N. Y., under medical treatment.

Mr. Marshall, the traveling photographer, is at the College, doing photographic work for the next catalogue.

Miss Clark, who has been visiting Miss Ada Lee Polk, passed through College on the 17th, on her way home.

The fourth formal meeting of the Texas Academy of science met at the College the 16th. The following were present:

The Calliopean society will hold its monthly special meeting on Saturday night January 20, 1894. Everybody cordially invited.

Dr. Rutherford of Houston and Dr. Harrington of Abilene were at the College attending Mrs. Harrington during her illness.

Misses Mary and Fannie McQueen, accompanied by Messrs Jack Roberts and Morris, paid the College a short visit on the 6th.

Misses Shepard, Lessie McConnico and May Webb were recent visitors of the College. The cadets are alway pleased to see the young ladies and we hope they will come again soon.

Photographs of the students at work in the different departments, of the buildings, and several Battalion formations will make a valuable addition to our annual catalogue.

Cadet Sewell, amateur photographer, room No. —, Ross Hall, has secured the loan of a "level" and will do sample work free of charge. See his photograph of the peddler if you doubt his ability as an artist.

E. E. Dumble, A. M. Mcfarlane, L. B. Halstead, J. C. Nagle, D. Cerna, R. B. Halley, C. L. Edwards, Charles Puryear, H. H. Harrington, W. H. von Streeruwitz and G. W. Pierce. After successfully carrying out the programme the meeting adjourned.

MISCELLANY.

A Comedy of Errors.

Lansing Journal.

A Lansing lady, who has relatives in Detroit, received a rather unique Christmas present yesterday. Last Saturday her sister in Detroit prepared a Christmas package for her and left it in the hallway, while she went driving. During her absence the tailor sent home a new pair of trousers for her husband, and the servant deposited the box containing the garment beside the Christmas box. Upon returning from the driving the husband seized one of the packages, which he addressed and forwarded to his Lansing relative. When he went home to tea he discovered that he had sent his Christmas trousers, while the package of Christmas things still remained unclaimed in the hallway. Rushing off to the express office, he had the agent wire the Lansing agent to return a package sent on a certain train addressed to a Lansing lady. The only package so addressed was accordingly returned to Detroit, but it subsequently developed that the trousers were sent on a later train, and that the young man had been