

them every hour of the day for weeks together. The scolder is really crying wolf too often and losing reputation to such a degree that ultimately his scoldings will pass by as the idle wind and be unheeded, if not unheard. It is well, therefore, to guard one's speech against untruthfulness, exaggeration or unnecessary complainings and to maintain a reputation for exactness; moderation and justice, so that whatever one may have to say will be listened to with respect and not be passed by as the idle cry of "wolf" when there is no wolf.

A good idea was suggested by one of our members just prior to the Christmas holiday which should again be brought to the attention of the Y. M. C. A. members who expect to return here next session. It is this: All members should provide themselves with the Y. M. C. A. emblem (the triangle pin) and wear it in a conspicuous position while on the train returning to College next session so that the new boys who expect to enter this College and are on the same train with us will know that we are members of the Association. As suggested, it will also be well to procure a few of our Association cards and try to do some effective work with them. If we will make ourselves agreeable to the new arrivals and exercise ourselves in their behalf—such as seeing that they are properly matriculated by the College Secretary, assigned to quarters by the Commandant, and made acquainted with their surroundings, etc.—we will make a good impression upon them and probably do much good work for the Association. The time to most surely win a boy's good will is immediately after his entrance into College and while he is yet a stranger. We would like to elaborate upon these points but want of space prevents. We are laboring in the interest of a good cause and this will be labor well expended.

In looking back over the work done and the ends accomplished by the Y. M. C. A. during the past session we feel a thrill of satisfaction and gladness as we contemplate the meaning. We feel that the objects for which the organiza-
