

tion is intended are being viewed in a new light by the student body in general. Boys are beginning to see that its members are sensible, practical people who belong to it for sensible practical reasons, who are interested not only in building up the religious and moral tone of the College, but also in building a better reputation for it. Not the fanatical religious cranks, which perhaps was the view taken of it in days that have been. The attendance at the Sunday evening devotional meetings has increased considerably over last year's attendance, and the interest shown as good as could be wished.

The work done by the amusement committee fills a place in Y. M. C. A. ranks that will no doubt add much strength to its name, by bringing the organization and its true objects more fully into notice, both to the campus people and the corps of cadets. Though only two entertainments, in the form of lectures, have been given much interest was shown and good support given.

We are sorry to say that the gymnasium, owing we suppose to the increased amount of out-door sports, has not been supported and patronized as well as usual. The gymnasium, if managed properly and so that its patronage would accrue patronage to the Y. M. C. A., we could well afford to furnish the necessary means for keeping it in perfect repair, but if it is not made to accomplish this purpose it would be well to make new arrangements for its maintenance, as it is a constant drain on the treasury. We hope that in future the work may prosper and increase as it has done already in the past. The Y. M. C. A. is a great organization, both in its objects and in the number of members and it is the wish of the retiring members from the senior class that the A. and M. organization may do its own part and add much brightness to the glistening array of trophies which the Y. M. C. A. has already captured in this wide land.

President Todd has announced the appointment of the following committees: Reception Committee, B. F. Bryan, chairman; Hospital committee, J. Y. Lowry; Devotional
