

employe of the Aransas Pass, with headquarters at San Antonio.

Foster W. Fort, '79, of Waco, was prevented from coming by the death of his brother-in-law.

Judge W. M. Sleeper, '79, of Waco, gratified his friends by his presence, and is expanding the character for sturdy honesty and integrity of character, which he has made as a student here. Sleeper was captain of Company B.

T. A. Fuller, '79, of San Antonio, delivered a most entertaining speech on the history of the college, and warmed up in every heart feelings of friendship for our comrades and of pride and reverence for our alma mater. It showed a mind of refined culture, with broad and generous views of life. It was delivered with the grace, ease and eloquence of a polished gentleman accustomed to the consideration and performance of public duties. May he live long and flourish, the pride of his classmates, an honor to the Alumni, a credit to his alma mater, and may he have conferred upon him the honor for which he is so eminently fitted, the Governorship of Texas, his native state.

Leroy Baker, '82, sent his dollar for annual dues, but was unavoidably detained at home. Whether he was the "idlest man in all these parts" deponent sayeth not.

W. A. Trueckman, '78, of Belleville, sends his dollar in payment of annual dues, and while deploring his inability to attend, desires to be remembered by his friends, and hopes no vacant place at the banquet board will be left for some missing Banquo. He was appointed on the committee to push Mr. Hutchinson's candidacy to a successful issue.

Alex Cunningham, '79, of Fort Worth, was unexpectedly prevented from attending. His route was changed and he found himself in Denver when he was to have been at the college.

P. L. Downs, '79, of Temple, made an excellent effort at the business meeting of the association, in which he urged each Alumnus of the college to exert his influence in sending students to the college. There is no way in which the Alumni can benefit their alma mater more and some of them are already attracting the attention of their comrades, of the Faculty, and of the Board, by excellent work done in this direction. Other institutions have canvassers out all over the state, while our alma mater has none. It therefore behooves us to take up the cudgels in her de-
