

two days. Through courtesy to Bryan friends a limited number were permitted to join the pleasure-seeking throng, and right glad we were to have them, for among the number were several of Bryan's charming young ladies, who always lend so much to College social functions.

The trip was without incident worthy of mention until our capital city was reached, where we were delayed two hours on account of an accident to a freight train ahead. The sight-seeing in Austin was thoroughly enjoyed, that within itself being worth our trip. Once aboard again the destination now looked forward to was New Braunfels, where had been provided for us a barbecue, spread by that most hospitable gentleman, Mr. Harry Landa. We thoroughly enjoyed the occasion, and, with sharpened appetites, partook of the evening feast which had been so bountifully supplied. Two hours later (9 in the evening) found us in the Alamo City, a tired, weary crowd. The students were provided quarters in the city armories, and the faculty found awaiting them elegant apartments in Hotel Menger. After a night of much needed rest, at 8:30 o'clock we assembled for grand guard mount on Alamo Plaza, and by 10 we were on the Fair grounds. The programme was opened by the College band and was very interesting.

The remainder of the day was spent in looking at various exhibits on the grounds and in witnessing the football game between Varsity and our crack eleven.

In the evening we were out en regle for the ball, which was a decided success, and one of the most pleasurable features of the trip. At 9:30 o'clock Sunday morning our train was off for College with all aboard except the band, which stayed over until Monday in San Antonio to enter the State Band Contest.

We wended our way homeward slowly, but surely, making but few stops on the road, reaching dear old A. and M. at 7 Sunday evening. Thus ended a long to be remembered, happy, enjoyable occasion.

Sue: "Does not applause denote pleasure in an audience?"

Nell: "Why, certainly; I notice you always get more applause when you go off the stage than when you come on."—Ex.

First Boy: "I don't like Cæsar."

Second Boy: "Why?"

First Boy: "Too much Saul."

"Did you ever meet a woman whose voice thrilled you with unspeakable emotion?"

"Yes; that's the way my mother used to get me up in the morning."—Exchange.

When it's hot he wants it cool,
When it's cool he wants it hot,
Always wanting what is not."
