

in-chief; M. S. Church, assistant editor-in-chief; C. O. Moser, business manager; J. E. Wilson, assistant business manager; W. Maxwell, literary editor; Burt E. Hull, athletic editor, and G. H. Pape, local and exchange editor. These young men have all been on the staff this year, and have worked earnestly and faithfully in the interest of the Battalion, and there is no doubt that when, in September, they assume control of the paper that the corps will get a good magazine.

The lecture given to the agricultural students by Uncle Dick Bonner, May 21, was such as no agricultural student could afford to have absented himself from. With the experience of a lifetime to enforce his words, he told some marvelous stories of production in the garden of Eden. It was not until this day the A. and M. cadets were almost forced to admit that the ruins of this great garden can now be found in the eastern part of our great state. We regret that the remainder of the corps did not get to hear him. His earnestness of speech and inspiring manner make him a very interesting lecturer, and we hope that he shall be with us again.

The lecture given by Mr. Dick Bonner of East Texas finishes the series of lectures arranged by the Agricultural department. We, the students of agriculture, feeling that this series of lectures has been one of the greatest factors in our course towards preparing us for future combating with the trials of life, wish very much to thank the president of the College, Profs. Gibbs, Johnston, Kyle and all the gentlemen who so willingly related some of their experiences to us in order that we might be benefited thereby. We further hope that this lecture course system shall be continued in the future.

To the class of '03, who are now facing the world, we, the class of '04, who are facing our senior year, extend our fondest hopes. We sincerely hope that your lives will be crowned with a bright success. We feel that our lives have been greatly enlightened by our acquaintance with you, and we expect to hold out your college career as an example by which we may learn to appropriate our invaluable college moments to the best advantage. '04

The C. E. section of the Second class boasts of the poet, Houchins; the artist, Hull; the sport, Cobbs; the philosopher, Pirie; the ladies' man, Fountain; the pugilist, McCutcheon; the writer, Lillard, and many more who represent the other honorable professions and callings of life.

The following advertisement is published for the benefit of the corps:

Becker & Stevens, dealers in cash. Cash bought and sold to highest bidder; special price paid for Sunday's cash; also good price paid for milk. Your trade solicited.

Squad No. 3 in Bridge Design was recently organized into a sketch club, with the following officers: Dick Mansfield, artist; Otey McKnight, critic; Flint McGregor, connoisseur, and Hiki Mathers, art model.