

M stands for a man who has a fine voice.

C. Otto Moser, the man of your choice.

P stands for a man of military shape,

And he has a good face; that's Gustave Pape.

P stands for Peden, who we all hope will grow,

For, while at the Mess Hall, he has learned how to crow.

P stands for an athlete, of full-back fame,

Also a brilliant student. Pirie is his name.

P stands for a man who played on our line,

Good old "Pa" Pucket, we all think he's fine.

R comes only once. That's enough all the same,

It here stands for Rubenpoenig, how's that for a name.

S stands for Stallcup, who rooms in South End;

A plodding old fellow, a faithful old friend.

S is now for our illustrious Stapp,

To charm a fair maid, he thin s is a snap.

S is for Stinson, who always looks tired,

For he's a big member of the famous rear guard.

T comes but once, for the love-sick Tom Tarver.

If he marries the girl, I am sure he will starv'er.

V is for Vick, last but not least,

A lion among ladies, but not really a beast.
