CAPTAIN SARGENT'S LECTURE.

Enjoyed by Large Audience in Chapel.

Captain Sargent's lecture on "Limitation of Armament and Arbitration" at the chapel Saturday night was well attended by the campus people and the students. He showed very conclusively that The Hague Peace Congress can never place a limitation on the Armament of a nation. He discussed the views of the different powers on this question and developed the fact that it is to the individual interests of the nations to increase their navies and strengthen their armies. He referred to the continual warfare in the animal kingdom, and drew the conclusion that war is the natural means of settling disputes. Since there is always a possibility of war between rival nations those nations will continue to increase their armament.

STATE UNIVERSITY WINS

Takes Two Games From A. and M. College.

(Austin Statesman)

Texas took two games from the A. and M. team on Clark Field yesterday afternoon. Both games were brimful of interest, and while the Farmers put up a very plucky fight, frequent errors and the hitting of Texas proved too much for them.

The feature of the afternoon was the pitching of Graham for Texas. He pitched the first game allowing five hits, and with only a few minutes rest pitched nine innings more, making a total of eighteen innings in one afternoon, allowing only seven hits throughout. He was carried off the field at the end on the shoulders of his supporters.

The two games, though both were interesting, were in striking contrast to each other. The first was a carnival of errors; the second was played with almost perfect fielding. Hits were numerous in the first and scarce in the second. The first abounded in spectacular plays, the second had none of them.

During the second game occurred what has seldom, if ever occurred at a baseball game at the University. The grand stand, seeing Texas about to lose, cast away their silence and gave a number of yells, cheering every good play by each player. "Hullabaloo" and "Rattle-de-thrat" were given also, and the silence that usually pervades the crowd during the ball games was broken up thoroughly.

Texas started the game right, making three runs in the first inning. Jacoby singled, stole second and third and was sent to the plate by La Priele, who reached first on an error, to be scored a moment later by Wathen's home run. The Farmers tied the score in the third inning by a succession of hits and errors, only to see Texas make three more in the fourth and one more in the eighth, which ended the scoring. Texas' victory in this game was due to the errors of the visitors, who let slip many a good opportunity for a putout, making ten errors. Jacoby's hitting was a feature, he getting three two-baggers, while Francis, though crippled, got a hit for two bases.

La Priele won applause by running back against the fence and pulling down a high drive, and Kelley for the Farmers made a beautiful bare-handed catch of a hot drive. Errors were few for Texas, and only three are charged against her.

Huff and Kelley did the hitting for the three scores to the college's credit. Jacoby hurt himself sliding to second near the end of the game, but recovered sufficiently to continue playing. Witherspoon at short was not given an opportunity to make a single assist, and only twice in the two games were balls knocked in his direction. Only two of the Farmers failed to make errors in this game.

TEXAS, 2; FARMERS, 1.

Things began to look rather bad for Texas in the fourth inning of the second game, up to which time men had been put out in one-two-three order. In this inning, with two men out, Smith landed for a home run over the left field fence. The score stood 1 to 0 until the sixth, when Wathen scored, and Walker made the winning run in the seventh.

Smith for A. & M. pitched a pretty game through, pulling himself out of three bad holes. In the sixth inning Wathen hit for two bases, reached third on Francis' single and scored amid cheers a moment later on McMahon's safe drive. This tied the score until the seventh inning, when Walker singled, reached second on Graham's sacrifice, third on Jacoby's hit and scored on La Priele's beautiful drive to the fence, winning the game. This game was rather devoid of spectacular features, although Wathen and McMahon worked a pretty double play in the eighth and Graham captured four assists in two innings. The feature of this game was the pitching of Graham, who, outside of Smith's home run, allowed only one hit. One other man reached first base on an error by Witherspoon.

"C" COMPANY RECEPTION.

The climax of many treats came Friday evening when Miss Hattie Lou Hudson threw open her spacious home for the entertainment of Company C, of which she is the most charming sponsor.

The color scheme in red and white was carried out in all the decorations. Japanese lanterns shed their soft light over the roomy lawn in the centre of which was spread a large tarpaulin with its many cushions; and just beyond were the swings, the popular cosy corners and the summer-houses, which were tastefully decorated in greens and red and white roses. Within, the decorations were centered in the dining-room, where long streamers twined from the candy laden table to the ornate chandelier.

The boys arrived at 8:30 and were received by Miss Hudson, who was surrounded, as one bewildered cadet said, by all the pretty girls in Bryan. After the introductions the crowd passed out to the lawn where conversation, games and frequent trips to the punch bowls—over which Misses Helen DeMaret, Stella Johnson, Madeline Hanway and Louise Batte presided—filled in the all too short time till the refreshments were served.

G. B. Foscoe won the prize, a pretty gold A. and M. C. pin, at "Nosey" Poker. This game differed from the usual game of that name in that it was a guessing contest and not a card game. Ingram made the best contribution to the paper Zoo and as a prize received a unique motto-card.

In the eating contest Brazos won over Fritz by a large score, for where Fritz got away with a bottle of olives, Brazos devoured six boats of salad and four bricks of ice cream. No prize was awarded.

The refreshments were salad, crackers and olives, served in red and white schooners, and red and white brick cream backed by delicious angel food.

The souvenirs were pretty little booklets having a cut of the championship football team with the names of Miss Hattie Lou Hudson, sponsor, and Arthur T. Potts, captain, just below.

The reception broke up at midnight, the company expressing themselves as having had a most pleasant time. The music throughout the evening was furnished by the Bryan string orchestra.

Those present were Mesdames Geo. Smith, Ballard, Carnes, Mann, Buchanan and Hibbs; Misses McInnis, Malcolm McInnis, Alberta Adams, Maggie McDougald, Allie Conway, Ray Conway, Robinson, Nannie Lou and Lola Betts, Sadie and Clara Mawhinney, Zimmerman, Herndon, Rhodes, Ruby, Vivian and Corine James, Saunders, Harris, Dunlap, Reynolds, Rhodes, Bessie, and Blanch Buchanan, Eaves, Pevery, Irene Board, Batte, DeMerit, Gussie Buchanan, Frances Chance, Webb, Jenkins, Cole, Roman, Garth, Smith, Seale, Tabor, Conlter, Foote, Martin, Lulu Tabor, Gregg, Knowles.
