CAPTAIN SARGENT AND A. AND M.

As his term of service draws to a close, we believe it is fitting to call attention to the lasting work which Captain H. H. Sargent, commandant of cadets, has done for the college. During his four years at A. and M. he has won the admiration and respect of every cadet. He has shown himself to be a ready speaker, a terse writer, a true soldier, and a commander of men. On divers occasions he has been "the right man in the right place," and has worked unceasingly for the good of Texas A. and M. and of the corps.

Captain Sargent is regarded by the corps of cadets as "an officer and a gentleman." When he leaves College Station for his new post of duty, he will carry with him the best wishes of some hundreds of A. and M. men; citizens and future citizens of the Lone Star State.

THE LAST NUMBER.

In issuing this number of the Battalion, the present staff puts out its last number. If a number is issued next week, it will be the work of the staff of 1907-'08—to whom we wish all success. In this, our last number, we take occasion to thank all those who have rendered any assistance in the publication of the paper.

A. AND M. AT WACO.

The whole corps appreciates the fine work done by our track team at the Southwestern meet. With only three men on the team, they secured a place of all but one event they entered and better still they secured two records. The track squad worked hard with little encouragement and every man on it is to be congratulated for enlarging the field of athletic success at A. and M. We have track material, and next year must have a larger team in order to win more than one place in an event. We must give the track the support it deserves.

CAPT. ANDREW MOSES.

New Commandant of the Agricultural and Mechanical College is a Texan.

A dispatch from Austin says: The new commandant of cadets at the Texas Agricultural and Mechanical College is a native Texan, Capt. Andrew Moses of the Coast Artillery, succeeding Capt. Sargent of the cavalry, transferred at the end of his term. Capt. Moses was born in Burnet county, a son of Col. Norton Moses, and was appointed to West Point by the then Congressman Joseph D. Sayers, since Governor of Texas. Capt. Moses graduated in 1897 and has been expert in heavy artillery, and recently specialized in electricity in connection therewith. At present he is stationed at Fort Moultrie, near Charleston. Capt. Moses is related to District Judge Fisher of Galveston, the Rhodes Fisher family of Austin and other Texans. He assumes command upon the opening of the A. and M. College next fall. The board of managers had a strenuous fight to secure Capt. Moses, as the War Department was adverse to sending a Captain and one an expert in heavy artillery and electricity. At first the department said it would send only a Lieutenant, but pressure was brought to bear and finally consent for Capt. Moses to come.

"D" VS. "C".

"D" Company raised her percentage Thursday by taking a five inning game from "C" by the score of 5 to 0. "C" Company failed to connect often enough to help. Lampert knocked Smith down and out in the third and DeWare went in the box. Bittle got three assists and a costly error. Butts played good at short for "D" and McDaniel got a hit that brought in two scores. Cox pitched a pretty game and got out of a bad hole in the second by striking out three with a man on third and one on second.

Cornell won the game with a timely three-bagger with two men on bases. The game was several times interrupted by a loud and continuous gush of hot air by Casine Wallace.
