College Station, Tex., May 3, 1912.

The closing social function of this college year, the final ball, is only five weeks off. This ball is given by the underclassmen and professors in honor of the departing Seniors. For some of the Seniors, this may be the last time of enjoyment at their alma mater and it should be the best. Everything, whether begun well or not, should end well, and we should desire the final ball to be a fitting close for four years of hard work. The first recalled recollections of any place are usually of the last received impressions while there, and every Senior, in recalling college days, should remember the final ball as the crowning good time.

All underclassmen that expect to graduate will (Dallas, Davidson supper, Lindy v are PERFECT in style sition of staying 98 feet long) will want the success and will men of that ke success.

Fellows, try to think of this position and do all that you can to support the coming final ball. The best support that you can give is that which will be requested by your First Sergeant in a few days.

The better this final event is pulled off, the better the Seniors will appreciate it and in departing take with them a lasting memory of a "royal time."

The absence of ice is beginning to make itself noticed as these May days get warmer. Thirsty students are wondering whether we are to have the accustomed barrel of ice water at the halls this year.

Last Tuesday evening in the Elks' club rooms, which were very prettily and artistically decorated with roses, carnations and wild vines, Miss Mary Ross Parker of Bryan entertained her many friends of both College Station and Bryan with a dance given in honor of her two visitors, Misses Johnson and Giddings. The grand march was led by Miss Johnson and Mr. Jack Gordon. Next came Miss Giddings and Mr. Osborn Johnson and Miss Mary Ross Parker and Mr. Bob Hearne, followed by some fifty other jolly couples. The arrangements were all that could be wished to make a successful dance. The floor was in the best of condition. The music was furnished by Besere's orchestra of Austin. There was punch and ice tea to quench the thirst and chicken sandwiches to appease the hunger of all. A more pleasant evening was never spent than this under the hospitality of Miss Mary Ross Parker.
