

his two field goals in the first half caused the blue feeling to settle over the A. and M. rooters. He was literally a fiend, and out of three attempts was successful in two. His line plunging also caused great trouble. He was a hard man to down, and was never known to lose a yard. The Sooners had other star men. Clark and Holland played great ball at ends, and Reeds' punting was a feature, and his playing was with a rush. Ambruster and Rogers did good work, as did Meacham. Hott, until taken out with a wrenched knee, put up a great line game. To Owen must be given credit for having a hard fighting team.

The supprt the corps gave the team was great. Each one was anxious to do his part well, and when the "Siren" or "Rickey-ti-Rock" thundered forth applause was always forthcoming. In "Rusty" Dowell and his two assistants we have as fine a lot of yell leaders as ever mounted an upturned barrel.

When Mr. Stevens took Miss Cawthon down to the Milners' swing at 11:30 at night, only to have her accuse him of being "a most unsentimental lad," he should first have taken into consideration the fact that some members of Presy's family are "fresh-air fiends" and sleep on the upstairs porch—that is, they sleep when not kept awake by highly entertaining conversations between "unsentimental" (?) seniors and charming ladies of the Lyceum course.
