A valuable lesson for every Agricultural student to know, is that AVERY'S Plows have been satisfying Southern planters for 87 years, and today on most big farm undertakings AVERY'S implements are invariably used. Taft's ranch and the State farms are examples of bigness, both use "the progressive line," Avery

THE A. AND M.-VARSITY SITUATION AS SEEN BY ONE OF OUR ALUMNI.

The recent demands of the University alumni for a post-season game with A. and M. causes us to consider the reasons which make such a game an impossibility at the present time. Chief among these reasons is the bitterness of feeling that exists between the adherents of the two institutions, and this bitterness mainly originated with and is now kept alive by the Varsity alumni. The writer has lately had opportunity to learn first hand some very interesting facts in this connection. Even the children of University people are taught from infancy to believe nothing good of A. and M. They have instilled into them the same spirit of intolerance that caused our Christian (?) ancestors to massacre each other on account of religious differences.

The great majority of the people at the University are not to blame for these conditions. The trouble lies in the fact that they do not understand the A. and M. College. All they hear and say about us is evil, so it is not to be wondered at that they actually believe the things they hear; for it is a well known fact that one can tell what he knows to be untrue a few times and it becomes truth to himself, to say nothing of his hearers. This accounts for some of the weird tales circulated in Austin about our team and our coach, who we know to be the best in the South. Why, if we believed the things about the University that they claim to believe about us, we would petition the Governor to call out the militia and put an end to such a den of iniquity; and would add as a special request that the corps of cadets be assigned to that duty.

It is but natural that we should resent the accusations that are so falsely made against our student body, our team, and our coach; for I am sure that in all these United States there is not a school with more college spirit or whose alumni are more loyal to their alma mater.

The best Texas can produce in the way of young men and young women make up the student body of the University; and though deprived of the refining influence of the "fair co-eds," we, too, are of the same stock. Each school has its own sphere of usefulness which does not encroach upon the other, and Texas, the greatest state in the Union, certainly has room for these two institutions, which should be made the best of their kind in the world. Therefore, why this jealousy? Let there be animated rivalry on gridiron, diamond, and cinder track, yes; but may we soon see an end to the present feeling, the bitterness of which is equalled only in civil war.

Heard in Dallas.

"Mr. Kendricks, what course is your son Jim taking at A. and M.?"

"Why, I think he's taking a course in football."
