B. S. in civil engineering. After three years of practical work with sewerage and waterworks construction he was given the degree of civil engineer. For the past five years he has been instructor in civil engineering in the University of Michigan.

The electrical engineering department has two new men. J. H. Cannon received the degree of B. S. in electrical engineering from Pardue and later did graduate work in the University of Chicago. He spent three years with the Westinghouse Company of Pittsburg, and has served as electrical expert for a number of big Eastern institutions. He taught electrical engineering for four years at Pardue and for the past three years has been in that department of the Carnegie Institute of Technology at Pittsburg. Robin Beach, who received the degree of bachelor of science in electrical engineering from the New Hampshire A. & M. College, and who took graduate work in the University of Illinois, is another new man in this department. He taught for two years at New Hampshire and one year at the University of Illinois, and has had much practical experience. Dudley South of Bryan is laboratory assistant in that department.

Only one new man has been assigned to the mechanical engineering department, that being C. G. Martinson, B. S. in mechanical engineering from the University of Kansas. For two years he has been instructor in mechanical engineering at the University of Colorado at Boulder. He will be instructor in mechanical engineering.

Roland Adelsperger, for seven years dean of the college of architecture at Notre Dame University, is the new head of the architectural department at A. & M. College, succeeding Prof. S. J. Fountain, whose death occurred August 15. In the department of drawing another new man has been added, Allen Burton, B. S. in architecture from the A. & M. College, and who did graduate work at Columbia University last year. Burton will be instructor in drawing.

In addition to the new commandant of cadets, Lieutenant James R. Hill of the United States cavalry, John C. Hyland of Austin, retired ordnance sergeant, has been added as assistant commandant.

Dr. J. H. Ehlers, a graduate of the University of Michigan, holding the degree of Ph. D., and who taught in that institution, has been elected as an instructor in the department of biology.

S. A. McMillan, a Texas boy and graduate of the A. & M. College, B. S. in agriculture and M. S. in agriculture from Cornell University, and who has had several years' teaching experience, will be associate professor of agronomy in charge of farm management and marketing. J. C. Oleson, B. S. in agricultural engineering from the Iowa State College of Agriculture, will be in charge of farm terracing work. For two years he has been in charge of this work at the Mississippi A. & M. College.

An assistant has been added in the department of agricultural education, the work of that department being too heavy for one man. J. H. Blackwell, B. S. in agriculture and B. S. in pedagogy from the University of Missouri, has been elected as associate professor of agricultural education. He has taught in rural schools, high schools and has been superintendent of public schools in two Missouri towns.

A. M. Parmalee, B. S. in agriculture, University of Nebraska, for two years an assistant in chemistry at Cornell University, has been elected instructor in chemistry.

In the animal husbandry department W. T. Magee, B. S. in animal husbandry from the University of Missouri, a product of a Missouri stock farm, has been named as an assistant. R. L. Darnell, who holds a B. S. degree from the Mississippi A. & M. College, is a new instructor in dairy husbandry.

Fritz Hensell, B. S. in horticulture, A. & M. College, '07, M. S. in landscape gardening from Cornell, will teach landscape gardening and floriculture at A. & M. Ira E. Cowart, another Texas boy and graduate in horticulture from the A. & M. College of Texas and M. S. in agriculture, University of Missouri, will be an instructor in horticulture.

All of the new men have arrived at the college and are ready for work.

IMPOSSIBLE!

"I was outspoken in my sentiments at the club this afternoon," said Mrs. Garrulous to her husband the other evening.

With a look of astonishment he replied: "I can't believe it, my dear. Who outspoke you?"
