STATE Y. M. C. A. CONVENTION.

The State "Y" convention will be held at College from the 18th to 21st, inclusive, of next month. Numerous men of prominence will address the gathering.

'FRISCO EXPOSITION NOW READY FOR THE PUBLIC.

The construction of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition at 'Frisco is finished, and a review of its progress gives assurance that the celebration will be unrivaled in its magnitude, interest and splendor. The largest and most brilliant of the world's expositions has more than met the exalted standards demanded of it as the greatest achievement of national achievement in American history.

Moreover, the exposition is a neutral ground, whereon even the nations at war, upon a wonderful scale, will pour their peaceful attainments in the arts, industries and sciences.

The American association of Traveling Passenger Agents, representing every railroad in the United States and Canada, recently officially declared of the Exposition, "That in the opinion of this association the Panama Exposition, in plan and execution, in grandeur and conception, and in beauty of detail; in program and performance, will be commensurate with the great national event which it celebrates, creditable to the nations which celebrate and an honor to California, the hostess State.

"And it is hereby resolved, That the Panama Exposition, in educational value, artistic stimulus, in beauty and interest, justifies the members of this association in urging every one who wishes to be abreast with culture, to come and stay long at the Exposition."—Overland Monthly.

THOSE NEW GUNS AND SABERS.

At last we have got our "forty cents' worth." The new guns are here, and from now until June we will do our best, three times each week, to get accustomed to their merits. They are 1913 models, and are considerably different from the models made five years earlier. The new rifles are very short, and we are told that they are lighter than the old ones. The bayonets are long and keen, and from their outside appearance they look as tho it would require a mechanic to get on to all the combination necessary.

The most ancient and historic part of the equipment is the new sabers, swords, or whatever they may be classed, that the senior privates are destined to wear. They were evidently made for service, and plenty of it, judging from the bountiful supply of material that has been put in them. Possibly it will be necessary for men like "Runt" Stangle to wear them around their necks.

CHRISTMAS ON THE CAMPUS.

There were something over one hundred students that remained on the campus during the Christmas holidays. Those two weekes were past off more pleasantly than some had anticipated. Doubtless some were sick a little because they could not go home to see their relatives and those that are (?) to be their relatives, but the campus people soon provided ways to dismiss this feeling.

Perhaps the most enthusiastic meeting was the Christmas tree at the new Y. M. C. A. headquarters. The campus ladies decorated the new building very attractively, and the campus people gave the cadets a hearty welcome to attend. An interesting program was rendered, after which Santa Claus remembered every one present. Many other pleasant events happened during the time, among which were the dance in the E. E. building, Prof. Fermier's moving picture show and DeLong's inventions in the firecracker line.

V. SCOTT PLAYS THE HERO.

At 3 o'clock Christmas morning, while making the rounds as night watchman, V. Scott discovered and extinguished a fire in the president's home. The fire originated in a room over the kitchen from an electric iron setting on an ironing board, the iron having been switched on when there was no current and left there. After some hours the board burned in two and fell to the floor, setting the floor afire. Scott reached Milner Hall about this time, saw the fire, rushed in and put it out in time to save a chiffonier, and, of course, the house.
