

Dixie Theatre

SATURDAY

THE USUAL GOOD SATURDAY MATINEE BILL

WITH

Fearless Helen Holmes

In One of the Railroad "Hazards" Series

"A LIFE IN THE BALANCE"

ALSO "WON THROUGH MERIT," GRAND EDISON DRAMA

And the Moving Picture Favorite, Wm. Stowell, in

"THE GENTLEMAN BURGLAR"

A Powerful two-Reel Selig Sensational Drama

COMPLETE CHANGE OF PROGRAM AT 6:30 P. M.

Including the Grand 3-Part Broadway Feature

'THE SECOND COMMANDMENT'

FEATURING DOROTHY BERNARD AND STAR CAST
GET THIS. THESE PICTURES ARE PAR
EXCELENCE

Queen Theatre

SATURDAY

ATTENTION. LOOK WHO'S HERE, BOYS

"FRITZI SCHEFF"

The Greatest Stage Favorite and Highest Priced
Actress in America, Is Presented by the Oliver Morosco-Paramount Co. in

Pretty Mrs. Smith

A SPONTANEOUS COMEDY MUDDLE

A SMILE, A LAUGH, A SCREAM, A ROAR
SOME ACTRESS, SOME PICTURE AND SOME COMEDY

SOPHOMORES GET TOASTMASTER

VERY EXCITING TIMES FOR THE
TWO MIDDLE CLASSES.

JUST HOW IT HAPPENED

Friday afternoon, March 13, a small group of Sophomores assembled during drill in one of the rooms of Mitchell Hall for a consultation as to what measures were to be taken in regard to the Junior banquet. After some discussion, it was decided that the toastmaster and others that were to take part in the program should not be allowed to run at large. When

To get the effect desired, place piece of paper on line, viewing only one side of face at a time.

this decision was reached the little gathering dispersed and began to look for information which was to be reported to Austin Hall later.

Scouts noticed that the "Bat Roost" had a magnetism about it; for Junior eyes were attracted that way, and occasionally a Junior would leave or enter the building. This caused the suspicion that a treasure might be hidden there and an invasion was made, the right door was opened, Runt was found, and captured. To be sure there was a scrap and a plucky one, too, but what could it accomplish against such odds in strength and number. "Runt" was tied and gagged in order that he might be the least possible trouble, for he did not seem to appreciate the way he was being handled, and would not stop kicking and fighting.

He was picked up, carried through Miler Hall, down by the steam plant, and then loaded on a push cart and hauled as far as the little red barn on the hill. The cart was then abandoned and "Runt" then became a burden, for he was to be carried. He refused to walk a step, but after he had been carried about five or six miles into the swamps he was set down and told to walk or stay there, and he chose walking. He was then tied to one of his captors and the march was continued.

While this was in progress two more parties were busy. One went for Stoner, but he proved too fleet for his pursuers and escaped. The other party confiscated Crocker and started him for the silo. On the way Crocker saw the "Bull" coming from target practice and he made an attempt to call for help, but a handkerchief quieted him.

Drill was over now and the air seemed to be filled with unrest. Some of the Juniors formed a skirmish line about a mile long and started out by the little red barn in search of their missing men, while others collected in small bunches for self-protection; but as Moffett was not too well guarded the Sophomores started out with him. Juniors and Sophomores flocked to the scene and a general fight started, but the O. D. arrived and peace was restored.

The skirmishers continued their search till late, when they found our little band with "Runt," and the captors turned captive, but they had been merciful and "Runt" took their part and they missed what they expected to receive. Crocker was found and shortly after dark the Juniors came pouring in from all directions with their strayed and stolen. It was all over then, the toastmaster had been recaptured and the Sophomores left the Juniors to eat in peace. Though the Juniors did not publish the fact, it was agreed that they would not remove the toastmaster from the barracks, and we feel that they played the part of sportsmen with us in every respect.

Prof. Kazmier (in poultry husbandy class)—If two fingers can be placed between the pelvic bones of a hen she is a laying hen.

"Fish" Brooks (with the dignity of a judge)—If only one finger can be placed between the pelvic bones, is that a sign of a rooster?

On the Night of the Junior Banquet.