

Jack Shelton Appointed Colonel of "Regiment"

PREPARATIONS COMPLETE FOR OPENING VETERINARY SCHOOL

School of Veterinary Medicine Will Open for Freshmen Students September 26th.

New Buildings Will Be Ready Next Year—Veterinary Science Building Will Cost 100,000.00.

With the beginning of the Forty-first term of the College, Sept. 26th, 1916, the formal opening of the school of veterinary medicine will be celebrated. From standpoint of personnel of teaching staff and equipment this school will be second to none in this section of the country.

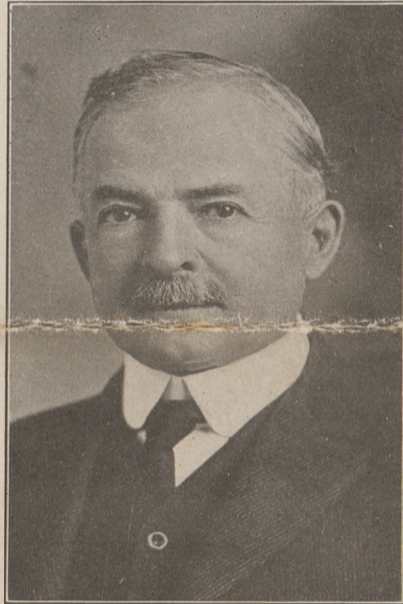

The school will be headed by Dr. Mark Francis, dean of the school of veterinary medicine, who has achieved a national reputation as one of the best equipped veterinarians, especially in research work, in the world. Dr. Francis' work with the Texas fever has given him a seat with the world's greatest scientists. Dr. Francis will teach anatomy.

Only Freshman work will be offered this year, it being the desire of this new school to begin from the ground floor and then proceed upward. A full description of the work offered may be had from the College catalog which may be had on request from the Registrar, College Station. The new course compares favorably with that offered at any school in the United States.

By the opening of the second year the veterinary school will be in its own building. This structure, which is to cost 100,000.00 will be under construction by the opening of the term of 1916 unless present plan go awry. During the coming session the Chemistry building will be utilized for class work.

The battery of Veterinary buildings will be located in the square which begins just East of the Textile Mill and extends East to the old dairy barn. The old Natatorium has been converted into an ideal dissecting laboratory. Showers and lockers have been installed there. The new building will be located on the site of the present infirmary. It will be a three story structure with class rooms and lecture rooms on each floor. The big lecture rooms, one on each floor, will be accessible to an elevator so that animals, alive or dead, may be used there for demonstration purposes. Elevated seats will be placed around the room which will be ar-
