FORMER PRESIDENT OF A. & M. COLLEGE DEAD

Colonel Jas. R. Cole Died in Dallas Saturday.

PRESIDENT HERE IN 1883-85

Colonel James R. Cole, former president of the Texas A. & M. college, died Saturday morning in Dallas. Col. Cole was head of this institution from 1883 to 1885, and was one of the leading educators of the state.

Col. Cole graduated from Trinity College in North Carolina in 1861, and immediately enlisted in the Confederate army as a private. His promotion was rapid, and at the end of the war he had attained the rank of colonel. Coming to Texas in 1866, Col. Cole accepted a professorship in McKenzie College at Clarksville. At various times up to his selection as president of A. & M. College he held positions in Kidd-Key or North Texas Female College, and in the State Legislature. After leaving here he established Cole's Classical and Military School at Dallas, and stayed with it thirteen years. From 1902-1908 he was with Texas Baptist University at Oak Cliff, retiring from public life in the latter year.

IN THE C. E. DRAFTING ROOM.

Tom Kelly: "Did any of you ever see the B. V. D. chorus?" Braden: "No. What did they pull off?" Baker: "Everything, I guess."

CADETS CONTRIBUTED $57.57 TO WAR LIBRARY FUND.

Although only a small offering was asked of the cadets at chapel last Sunday morning, it is gratifying to note how liberally they responded to the opportunity to contribute to the War Library Fund. The proposition that every man might contribute "the smallest change that he had on his person" raised the sum of $57.57. The interest shown by the cadets is evidenced by the presence of a large number of twenty-five and fifty cent pieces and even dollar bill among the coins contributed.

On behalf of the committee in charge of raising the funds among the campus people, I use this means to thank all those for the offering made last Sunday. The committee is well pleased with the response you have made to this worthy cause.

(Signed) T. E. HOGAN, Chairman Student's Committee.
