

Non-Commissioned Officers

EDMUND TAYLOR '20.

Waco—Chemical Engineering, Second Lieutenant, Battery A.

"Red" has the distinction of being a Junior Commissioned officer at A. and M. He proved his ability as a military man by successfully completing the Officers Training Camp at Fort Sheridan, Ill., and winning the coveted commission as Second Lieutenant, F. A., September 16th, 1918. He was stationed at Camp Zachary Taylor, Ky., with the 37th Training Battery. After the armistice was signed he decided to resign from the army and re-enter College and finish his course in Chemical Engineering. He received his discharge December 28th, 1918, after finishing his course at West Point, Ky., and in January we welcomed him back to college.

"Red" is a good officer because he puts everything into whatever he goes after, and he usually gets the best out of it. He has the undivided support of every man in the Battery and we wish him the best of success both throughout the remainder of his college career and out in the business world.

W. A. MULLANE (MIKE) '21.

Electrical Engineering; Houston Club; Sergeant Battery A, Chief 5th Section.

"Mike" has the honor of rising from the ranks, as a private to a commissioned officer as Second Lieutenant F. A. He enlisted as a private June 1, 1918, at Fort Sam Houston, and was then transferred to Camp Jackson, S. C. His military ability was noticed and he was recommended as a candidate to the officers training camp of Field Artillery at Camp Zachary Taylor on July 5. He "made good" at this camp, graduating, October 2nd as Second Lieutenant, F. A. From the 23rd Training Battery he was transferred to the 57th F. A., Fort Sill, Okla., where he was taking intensive training preparatory to overseas service, when the armistice was signed.

Mike says the army is fine during war, but he had rather be at A. and M. during peace. He received his discharge December 7, 1918, and re-entered A. and M. College in January.

All of the "Fish" know "Mike", and what he says "goes". They all like him, and seem to enjoy his "after tattoo formal guard mount" more than anyone else.

Mullane says his section is going to be the crack gun section of Battery A. It won't be his fault if they fail, however, they are going to have to step lively for the race is neck to neck at present.

As an Electrical Engineer we predict for him the same success that he made in the army. He has a fruitful future awaiting him and we shall continue to watch his progress throughout his career.

ARUTHUR H. JUNGMAN.
Sergeant.

"Mutt" came to college with the "Fish" class of '16-'17. He was among the many A. and M. men who entered the Officers Training Camp at Fort Sheridan early in 1918. He won his commission there September 18th, 1918. After serving a short time in the Infantry, he requested a transfer to the Artillery and was sent to the Field Artillery Officers Training School, Camp Zachary Taylor for special training and graduated there December 26th, 1918. "Mutt" preferred completing his college course to remaining in the army so soon after graduating at Camp Zachary Taylor, he procured his discharge.

Jungman returned to college early this year and has really assisted in the organization and training of the Battery. Although he has the duties of Regimental Color Sergeant to perform, in addition to assisting in training in the Battery, "Mutt" still finds time to give a great deal of helpful information on Artillery matters or any other subject pertaining to military work.

COXY EVANS.

From the heavy Artillery comes our First Lieutenant. He hails us with a smile and readily admits that he is about the best fellow what is.

His ability as a business manager is only paralleled by a very few. As a student, he stands among the highest. And, as a soldier, the government answered this when it gave him his commission. The Battery could fill many vacancies but his could only be partly filled.

He has a winning way among men and is a shark with the ladies. Many of our female friends get real nervous when he comes near. So here's to our First Loot, a better one could never be found.

ROY K. EASLEY, '21.

Fort Worth; Chemical Engineering; Battalion Reporter, Sergeant Battery A, Sergeant Band, Chief 2nd Gun Section.

"Easy" attended the Officers Training School at Fort Sheridan, Illinois, where he made good and was commissioned Second Lieutenant in the Field Artillery on September 16th,
