

THE BULL.

(With due apologies to Longfellow) Out from his lair comes a warning and call to all.
Upon the glaring bull's side,
The worthy Bull doth say,
The Bull, a mighty man, is he,
With loud and angry commands;
And the student, dreading much,
Honor his least demands.

His voice is crisp and loud and long,
His face is like the sun,
His brow is as dark as a man-eating
shark,
He rams where'er he can;
He looks the whole corps in the face
To see if he can find a weaker man.

Week in, week out, from morn till
night,
You can hear his voice so low (?) ;
You can hear his mighty voice
With measured beats just so:
Like a bull dog on the porch,
And in you're afraid to go.

And students coming thru the Hall
Look upon the hated door;
They dread to see his raring face,
And hear his thunder roar;
And catch the hot words off the bat
That sting as none e'er stung before.

He goes on Sunday to the church,
And sits among the boys;
He hears the preacher pray and preach,
And listens for a whispering voice;
At last he hears it in the crowd,

And he makes his heart rejoice.

Alas! it's a spoke supplies;
He makes off to the market
And finds no place to guess.
Now a place is about to be found,
Yet again the Bull has sighs.

The Bull goes to the market
And finds no place to guess.
Now a place is about to be found,
Yet again the Bull has sighs.
And night ev'rywhere someone goes,
Somewhere else, someone runs
And night ev'rywhere someone goes,
He earned his robes of repose.

Thank you thanks to thee, my worthiest
of friends.

For a lot of demerits so long and full.

Thus in the midst of constant strife
We're bound to suffer,
No one could well enjoy this life
But the old Bull, Bull, Bull.

B COMPANY BANQUET

President Wilson, who had been ill for some time, was unable to be avoided as he came to speak at the meeting.

After the speech, the members of the company were seated at tables and enjoyed the meal. The meeting was opened with a short speech by the president of the company.

As a token of his appreciation of the excellent manner in which the meeting was carried out, the Bull gave the company the whole year for privilege of remaining in the beautiful campus for a while.

Thus far, the Bull has remained in the company's possession, but it is possible that he will be given to another member of the company.

Thus ends the end of the first feast ever held in the history of A and C College of Texas.

After the meeting, we gave the company the right to be avoided as they had been ill for some time, and the Bull, who had been slightly ill,
had been invited to speak at the meeting.

After the speech, the members of the company were seated at tables and enjoyed the meal. The meeting was opened with a short speech by the president of this company.

As a token of his appreciation of the excellent manner in which the meeting was carried out, the Bull gave the company the whole year for privilege of remaining in the beautiful campus for a while.

Well Seasoned!

We hear varying reports as to the loss of A and C faculty, but we believe a majority of the freshmen are of the same opinion that considerable quantities of the old "pepper"
still remain in our midst.
