

GRIT.

If we look around us to-day we can perceive numerous people who possess resolution, spunk, or, as it is commonly called, grit. We can also see persons of the clinging vine and spineless variety who are decidedly lacking in this same sandy characteristic.

The man who would stand forth and be glorified in the fact that he is a benefit to humanity, a help to his people instead of a hindrance, an asset and not a drawback to society, is, in our estimation, the man you want to look out for. This man possesses grit, and shuns cowardice as he would a wily reptile trying to strike him in the dark. As he detests publicity, he will be found only when sought for diligently. He is big-hearted, frank, direct, simple, and unaffected. It has been said that only truly great men can be simple.

Among the many true and loyal sons of A. and M. who were in the recent gigantic struggle; among those who went over the top to strike their blow for the greatest nation in the world; among those who, knowing that theirs was a mighty and righteous cause, gladly gave up their lives for the sake of others; among all those who bravely and unflinchingly penetrated into the enemies' lines, not one, and we can rightly proudly say it, lacked Grit.

After much deep deliberation, we have about doped it out: E. C. Rapp's girl must be either a multi-millionaire or a long distance telephone (operator).

P. S. We rather think the later.

When life seems dark and dreary,
And clouds are drifting low,
Do not give up in weak despair
Without at least a blow.

We may not all be perfect,
In fact, few such are blest;
We must impart the best we've got—
Raise life above a jest.

The path of truth is rugged,
Pitfalls and ruts abound;
Let us not fall by the side of the road
When our turn comes around.

So now let's all get busy
And join the "regular" bunch,
Get some life into your living!
Put some 'pep' behing your punch!
