

up a fumble and ran seventy yards for the second touchdown of the game. Higginbotham easily kicked goal after each touchdown. The entire Texas team was playing clean-cut, fast football. The first half ended: Texas 14, Oklahoma 0.

Toward the middle of the third quarter, Oklahoma began to perceptibly weaken and their attack lost much of its former aggressiveness. At the same time the Farmers hit their stride and their effectiveness constantly increased until the final whistle blew. Alexander grabbed a fumble in the third period and went through a clear field for forty-five yards, scoring the third touchdown. During the remainder of the game the ball was in enemy territory practically at all time. In the last period Higginbotham showed all of his old 1917 form when he broke loose around left end and went forty yards through a broken field for the final count of the game. Bible sent in several second string men. Some five minutes before time was called, Ray, the most effective man in the Oklahoma backfield, broke through Texas' right end, cleared himself of all tacklers, and had a clear field of seventy yards in front of him. The world stopped while "Mule" Davis stretching his legs a little longer than was humanly possible, gradually over-took the Oklahoman. When he downed him on A. and M.'s ten-yard line, everybody breathed again. It was the most sensational tackle of the game and certainly the most important. The visitors tried the passing game in an effort to score, but Texas knocked down all passes and then blocked and recovered an attempted drop-kick from the fifteen-yard line. Mahan punted out of danger and the game ended a few seconds later with the ball in mid-field.

The most noticeable thing about A. and M.'s playing, in contrast to that of other games this season, was the way in which the team worked as a team. The fact that the four touchdowns were scored by four different men breaks up all talk of a one-man team. Interference was the best seen this year. The team came into its own only in the latter part of the game and the versatility that it displayed looked good. The line held against the handicap of weight. Tom and Keen, especially, showed speed and fight when sent in to relieve regulars. Alexander and Davis frequently pulled some brilliant work, circling behind Oklahoma's line and throwing their men for losses. The backfield intercepted the majority of Oklahoma's passes and made gaining by the aerial routs impossible. Martin played a steady game. Besides helping the score along, Pearce ran the team well. Mahan sustained his reputation fully and Higginbotham performed even better than in previous games. His punts were gotten off quickly and were long, high spirals—the kind Collins used to kick. They averaged fifty yards, while some went for sixty-five. "Hig" is rounding into true form in carrying the oval, though he has been held back by injuries. He has been warned that many re-hurts may injure him for life, but—well, "Hig" is needed and you don't see him stop short of half a dozen holding his propelling machinery.

Texas played straight football throughout the game. Oklahoma displayed the most finished type of driving football seen this season, using cross-bucks and delayed-bucks with effect. Their open offense was easily broken by the Texas speed. Ray was their most consistent gainer, both through the line and around the ends. Lookabaugh played a hard, experienced game. Gay, the Oklahoma captain playing at center, was powerful and exhibited a brand of nerve worthy of an A. and M. man. His team played well in back of him and put up the hardest scrap of the year.

Friday's game was just the beginning. The improvement shown was great; but it's just starting. The team is feeling its power for the first time, we know where we are "at", and we know where we are going to be "at" Thanksgiving. In the meanwhile we are going to pull the Bear's tail off Saturday at Waco.
