SONNETS OF "SUSIE"

Where is the guy who was always there

When the last call of reveille broke on the air;

The guy who was there when "suppie" blew,

Though it gave him nausea to think of the stew;

The fellow who drilled when 'twas hot and cold

And always held a countenance bold;

Who went to drill in sunshine or rain

And never, no never was heard to complain;

The fellow who never got rammed at inspection,

And followed implicitly every direction.

Show us this guy for we've always persisted

That never, yea, never, such creature existed.

SECOND VERSE—SAME TUNE

Who's seen the fellow while in class
Is never distracted with thoughts of some lass;

Who gets the substance of all that is said

Recorded permanently in his head;

Who, when the "Prof" is prone to rave,

The end of the period does not crave;

Who never invented some smooth alibi

When he suspected that trouble was nigh;

A fellow who never made a mistake,
Or in some predicament never did fake.

Show us this lad with all his virtues
