

BOTTLE SIDES

From the way these flivvers jump cross ties, we would suggest that their names be changed from road lice to grasshoppers.

If the Juniors aren't careful they will find their toastmaster in the sack which they loudly proclaim the Sophomores are holding.

WANTED — A job as 1st. sergeant. An ambitious young man.— M. J. J.

Some of the horrors of hazing— Capt. Boulden and Lt. Peteet having the Fish assist them in taking off their boots.

The Fish say they are afraid to go to the post office for fear that "quarters" will be blown and they will be rammed out of school before they can get back.

The suggestion that we read in last week's Bat namely that the Bat reporters should not be forced to undergo the hardships of reveille, meets with our entire approval. In addition to the debate suggested we would recommend that a general vote be taken and a petition duly submitted to the proper authorities.

From current reports we are led to expect a call for aid from the artillery Sophs. Spare the rod and spoil the Fish.

The Fish on Banquet night: "Some may come and some may go, but I go on forever."

Speaking of desirable things, how would it suit your compoterosity to rip open a letter from one of Broadway's spiffiest little stars that read something like this: "I am homesick for one of your old time champagne suppers. Before beginning rehearsals I think I shall join you for a little mountain air. You may expect me almost any time. I enclose my latest photograph in remembrance of our quiet little blow-out at Dreamland, July 4. With love and a thousand kisses, I am your own little tootsy-wootsy, Kitty." Almost as snappy as Kitty herself. But with you is your old maid sister-in-law who is about to give you ten thousand Hebrew ambitions because of your aversion to the stage, especially the side entrance thereof. And then a young up-start from Yale swipes the above letter and photograph and threatens to expose you to the puritanical sister-in-law unless you consent to his marriage to your ward, whereby you will lose another ten thousand. You'd probably feel like a man up the old creek without a paddle. And, to cap it all, Kitty arrives—and thereby hangs the tale. You may have to get out of just such a predicament some day before you settle down to that quiet existence with the wife and children. William Winkler handles the situation rather nervily in "The Arrival of Kitty," to be presented by the Dramatic Club, April 6. Prof. Brackett, who is directing, promises a production better than even the senior play of last year.

P. S.—The feminine roles will be played by imported feminine talent.

Listen, fellows, do you realize that it is less than a month until the R. V. dances? Remember this all-important time of much joy, and get that date. Who was it made the remark, "That he who waits will hold the sack"?

AGGIES TO PLAY TEN GAMES HERE

The 1920 Baseball Schedule Contains Twenty-Two Games, Only Twenty are Intercollegiate.

Final definite announcement of the A. and M. College 1920 baseball schedule as arranged by the Athletic Council includes twenty-two games, of which twelve are to be played at College Station and ten out of town.

The Aggies will only participate in twenty-one games, the other one on the schedule is an exhibition game at Kyle Field on March 29, between the St. Louis Nationals and the Philadelphia Americans.

The other game is with the 37th Infantry team from Fort McIntosh, Texas, played at Kyle Field Monday, March 22.

All others are intercollegiate games. A total of four games will be played with the Longhorns, two in College Station and two in Austin. The Longhorns come here first for two games, April 12 and 13, and the last two games of the season will be with Texas at Austin. The first twelve games of the schedule will be played in College Station and the remaining ten will be played away from home. The first game was seen here Monday March 22, and the last ones April 19 and 20 with S. M. U.

The Aggies will make two trips. On the first one they will play eight games, six of them in as many days leaving here on April 26, they will play S. M. U. at Dallas, April 26 and 27, Austin College at Sherman, April 28 and 29, T. C. U. at Fort Worth, April 30 and May 1, and Rice at Houston, May 3 and 4.

The second and last trip will be made to Austin for the remaining two games of the season with Texas.

The complete schedule is as follows:

March 22, 37th Infantry at College Station; March 24 and 25, Austin College, College Station; March 29, St. Louis Nationals and Philadelphia Americans at College Station; March 30 and 31, Rice at College Station; April 7 and 8, Baylor at College Station; April 12 and 13, Texas University at College Station; April 19 and 20, S. M. U. at College Station; April 26 and 27, S. M. U. at Dallas; April 28 and 29, Austin College at Sherman; April 30 and May 1, T. C. U. at Fort Worth; May 3 and 4, Rice at Houston; May 14 and 15, Texas U. at Austin.
