When this tournament has been finished a squad of from 12 to 16 men will be selected by the coach and two courts behind the Shirley Annex will be reserved for them. Only singles will be played for some time and record will be kept of each man on a percentage basis, rather than by elimination.

The Executive Committee has decided that only paid up members of the Tennis Association will have the privilege of playing on the courts now under the management of and being maintained by the Association. The Association has secured complete control of the courts behind the Shirley Annex and those west of the Y. M. C. A. and through its organized efforts has been able to maintain these courts in good playing condition.

Arrangements are being made for a dual meet with Baylor University and it is hoped that the Association will be able to bring this school here sometime in April.

C. E. SOCIETY GIVES SMOKER
A Good Time Was Had By All

On last Monday night the Civil Engineering Society collected available funds and gave a smoker in the C. E. Building.

The menu consisted of Cleopatras, Favorites, Australio Heimalias, Canyocs (Callege variety), and Psendimonous Rodicicakii. From the way the members partook of the menu and from the general sentiment expressed, it is established that the affair was a success. Cleopatras Favorites seemed to be a rather strong species and sent some of our members home groggy, but the majority managed to hold their own and the supply diminished very rapidly.

The program consisted of several talks led by Ike Ashburn.

The talks were of a varied nature and gave promise of extreme interest when adjournment was finally necessary.

Among the stars of the evening A. B. Knickerbocker deserves special mention on his ability as an orator.

The C. E. Society has big plans worked out for the future and intends to develop a strong organization.

The Department of Electrical Engineering is contemplating or rather planning to inaugurate an inter-collegiate news service by radio. Furnished with the names of a good many college publications, together with the names and addresses of editors, communication could be established and the latest up-to-the-minute dope and news could be handed out. We are thrilled with the idea and hope to see it in operation before very long. M. W. A. Tolson is the instigator and firmly believes that such a scheme could be carried out to perfection. The Bat is heartily in favor and only requests to be first in line in the news received.

JUNIOR BANQUET HELD TUESDAY WITHOUT MISHAP

several entrances at once was executed with the result that under cover of darkness those in the rear were successful—and here success was the prime requisite because this fight decided the victor. None seem to know just how it all came about, etc., but the fact remains that he was rushed in—this distinguished personage being Mr. Bill King of San Antonio, Texas, and newspaper fame—magazines included.

History of the case tells us he has been a traveling man for the past week but returned early Monday morning in a car with wings—that's the way the Sophs tell it—because of its ability to climb over a pile of cross ties.

The Sophomore class is to be congratulated upon the splendid spirit shown in time of defeat and also in their movement of "airing 'em out" which was as complete and thorough as there other actions which have characterized their campaign.

The program of the banquet included besides talks by members of the class, a song by Miss Lovell and music by Holick's Novelty Orchestra. Aubrey Legg gave a brief resume of the actions or rather a history of the Junior class; W. T. "Tanlac" Strange orated on "Dealing in Futures"; S. C. Evens briefly brought up the question of "Our Senior Year", and "Red" Thompson ran wild on "The Crime of Labor". The banquet was completed by 10 o'clock—that is the Juniors part of it. What happened after that needs to be referred to a committee.

The Junior class with "Tanlac" Strange as editor will publish an edition of The Battalion week after next or April 1st. This promises to be the best ever as such a class should not go unrecognized.

AGRICULTURAL EDUCATION STUDENTS VISIT BRYAN HIGH SCHOOL

In conjunction with the regular class work of the methods of teaching class of the Agricultural Education Department, visits are being made to the Bryan High School one afternoon every other week for the purpose of observing the different means and methods utilized in the instruction of High School pupils. These classes are composed of men who contemplate accepting positions as teachers of vocational agriculture under the Smith-Hughes Act throughout the State and Bryan is the only practical place in which to do all of this observation work. These classes are under the direction of Mr. J. Horace Kraft, associate professor of the department, who has had much experience as a teacher and in extension and demonstration work. The superintendent and faculty of the Bryan High School have shown these classes every courtesy and the type of work that is being done there should serve as an incentive to those who recognize good work.

Hartwell J. Kennard, 102 Milner, wants to know who it was that completely wrecked his bed last Tuesday night. His idea of wanting to know is that it is his desire to thank the "guilty one" for placing his suit on the chair so neatly.
