

would breathe a prayer and take to the tall and uncut. To be sure I had plenty of company. I think that old expression, "the woods are full of them" must have originated at A. and M. Things ran on this way for a couple of weeks, until finally we woke up one morning to find that there was something wrong. The very atmosphere was filled and charged with ominous murmurings. The old boys were restless and distracted, and gathered around in little groups, talking in undertones. Well I calculated that the climate of College Station was growing exceedingly unhealthy for a mere Fish like me, so that evening immediately after supper I decamped, I hit the trail for parts unknown. I took it rather easy for the first half mile, then I heard a long piercing yell, followed by a large chorus. Oh! boy I imagine every Sophomore in the school was on my trail, or rather our trail, and then I began to get into action. The old fence posts whizzed by so fast they looked like a board fence. It took me until five o'clock the next morning to get back over the ground I covered in that half hour.

Nothing much happened since that time. My Fish career draws to a close. The time waxeth ripe when I shall graduate to the other end of the Fish-killer, and my heart is filled with much joy and anticipation. I've got two Freshmen coming down here next year, and do you think I am going to neglect my duty toward them? They shall be brought up according as it is writ in the traditions of the liveliest, peppiest, highest ranking school on the North American Continent—yea, the entire world: Texas A. and M.

The Most Interesting Meet of the Season Was Seen Here Friday Afternoon.

The Aggies exceeded their fondest expectations Friday afternoon by defeating the powerful Baylor track team on the local field by the score of 61 1-3 to 55 2-3 and established themselves indisputably in first place for Conference honors. In Keen, Mahan, Sanders, Hugon, Weir, Barmore and Steele, Coach Clutter has material that can be depended upon for the best, their ability was clearly demonstrated in the events Friday.

Nig Dotson the "mighty man" of the Baylor squad failed to class with Keen the Aggie champion of the weight events.

The strongest unit in point of winnings for the Bears is Wolf, who distinguished himself admirably in this meet. His endurance was wonderful and the close running of the Bears was responsible in great part to his continued efforts in spite of the fact that he disabled himself on the start by outdoing Weir in the 100 yd. dash.

The meet was interesting to the point of excitement and was indecisive until the relay when the teams stood 55 2-3 to 56 1-3 with A. and M. leading.

Both Baylor and A. and M. took seven first places; but A. and M. got seven second places while Baylor got only six.
