Pavell of Orange, as a boy of 15 years, attending the St. Mary university of Galveston in 1884, found medal in a puddle of water by the side of a pile of brick near the old assenger station. This was during the time of the celebration of the places: Galveston centennial, in which a number of students of Texas uniersity and colleges participated. Although Mr. Pavell advertised for the owner of the medal, no one applied for it. It was retained through the years that followed. It was among the articles found on Mr. Pavell's premises after the storm of 1915, which swept over the Johnsons Bayou sent it to the Texas A. and M. col- our shoes.
