

PENNANT DREAMS SHATTERED BY BEAR VICTORIES

Exactly one week from the date of the last workout they met Frank Bridges' Bears at the above mentioned place. Lyons and Gill were the opposing twirlers and the former had a decided edge. He also got much better support. The Bruins garnered eight hits and six runs while the Aggies were only able to get five safeties and one tally. Gill had a slight edge until the third when the hits by Lyons and Pittman and two sacrifices gave Baylor two runs. The Aggies' only score came in the fourth when Mathews singled, went to second on Dinan's sacrifice and scored on Smith's clean drive.

From beginning to end the second game was a hot pitcher's battle between Tanner and Dutch Ehlert. Aside from the sixth Dutch had a decided advantage; but this one inning was enough to give Baylor a lone run which was sufficient to win for Tanner. Ehlert did not issue four balls a single time and whiffed eight batters while Tanner struck out only four and issued four passes.

However, the Aggie twirler helped bring about his own downfall, when in the sixth inning he slammed a ball against Williams, the first hitter. Strickland followed with a single; Crosby forced Williamson at third and then Teddy Lyons got a drive that scored the Bruin third sacker. Covington got an infield hit but Crosby was held on third. At this juncture Crawford pulled Dutch out of a hole when he picked Hawkshaw off third. A. and M. had their best chance to count in the fifth when Ehlert led off with a single. However, Doherty forced him at second and Guynes' single which followed, went for naught.

The work of the pitchers was the main feature, while Crawford's catching was also classy indeed. Dwyer had a good day in the field and at bat. Crosby led the Baptists in stick-work.

THANKS AWFULLY!

As the time draws nigh for us to close the old text book and again grasp firmly the hoe handle we are conscious of a thanksgiving sentiment in our heart that we feel should have voice in these columns. To those who were so instrumental in coining our past happiness we are forever grateful. In this, the last regular issue of the Bat, we wish to extend to you a most generous vote of thanks:

- To Casey and Sparks for their philanthropic proclivities.
- To Spezer's emporium for the palatable dainties dished out that so admirably satiated our ravenous appetites and gave free rein to our epicurian qualifications.
- To old man Sully for admitting us to Kyle Field without coupon books.
- To Mother Nature for allowing her offspring Jupiter Pluvius to visit our campus every Thursday morning thereby eliminating drill.
- To our own dear profs for their parental tendencies (1st call for Dudley Baker) and their conspicuous absences from the classroom during quizzes.
- To Seniore Brackette, that inimitable champion of the legitimate stage, under whose consummate directorial skill mediocre thespians have metamorphosed to histrionic personages of finesse.
- To the cadets for so splendidly living up to their traditional Southern gentlemanly conduct and etiquette at the airdome movies.
- To the College laundry for their thoughtfulness in marking our clothes so that they are recognizable.
- To Script Mitchell for his delightfully exclusive terpsichorean fling of last Thanksgiving even at the personal risk of financial stringency.
