TWAS SAID:—

A story is told of a certain Englishman who thought everybody knew or ought to know him. One day he was walking thru a field when a bull addressed him in an undertone and made for him with his head down.

He was a man of dignity and political power. But he ran. He ran surprisingly well and reached the fence before the bull. He clambered over, out of breath and dignity and found the owner of the bull contemplating the operation.

"What do you mean sir," asked the irate politician, "by having an infuriated animal like that roaming about the field?"

"Well, I suppose the bull has some right in the field," said the farmer.

"Do you know who I am sir?" gasped the politician.

The farmer shook his head. "I am the Right Honorable Sir—"

"Then why on earth didn't you tell the bull?" said the farmer.

it remained for a substitute to play the hero's role that night. In a desperate effort to achieve the proper combination, Coach Bible began to shift his forwards. Megarity replaced Duckett and when it was evident that Megarity wasn't right, Brient was sent in to replace him. With a minute to play Keen, with four men hanging on his arms, boosted a crisp shot onto the ring that rolled off after long hesitation. Then the guards succeeded in working the ball to Brient for an easy goal that tied the score. The whistle blew with the score thus tied 19 to 19, requiring an extra 5 minute period. Both teams had enough reserve power to carry them through this extra period and the Aggie team was fighting fiercely to make their comeback count. Brient counted again, but Willis of Rice tied it up by a beautifully advanced crisp shot. It was then that Brient received the chance that made him the star of the series. Swooping up a loose ball he dribbled it within shooting distance and rung up the final counter.

operate with and takes his shots most successfully.

For the best standing guard we pin the award on none other than "King" Gill of the Texas Aggies. Fight-fight-fight, was the beginning and end with Gill always, forcing the game and playing the game with his good-natured elements predominating. His ability to break up opponent's shots and keeping the ball away from his section of the court, has made him an invaluable man to any team. He can shoot most successfully at critical times and has that ability to work with the rest of the team—that one characteristic that so many good players lack. Gill shoots when no one else is open—this lack of individuality has made him an outstanding player. The next best man is Brooks of S. M. U. who has been playing a jumping center, then following thru with standing guard. Some features of Brooks excell Gill, that being his ability to rush a man and yet not charge him. Brooks is a very valuable man in breaking up shots from short positions and passes well.

Other men of honorable mention are: Williamson of Baylor, who has played a consistent game, but seems to be slow and lack the ability to fathom the movements of the opposing team quick enough. Willis of Rice is a very heady man and shows great ability in foot work—very shifty.

As the supreme Coach, there should be no doubt in any man's mind, that being Coach D. X. Bible, followed by Coach Faulkner of S. M. U.
