Bull Johnson, the Aggie captain, was the star of the game. His black hair could be seen flying toward every play, and when the pile unraveled he was usually found on the bottom. Time and again he left his own position, went back of his line and smeared end-runs and passes. Jack Evans played the best game of his career. He was opposed by Blood Miller, a blond giant who was nominated for an All-Southern End, but several times Jack sent the mighty Blood rolling like a cart-wheel and then nabbed a punt-returning-back in his tracks. Stivers, the center of the Sewanee team, played a good game, making at least half of the tackles on defense. Powers, the veteran quarterback of the Tigers, played a nice game also, breaking up most of the passes that the Aggies threw.

The game was a thriller from the start. The Aggie band came on the field fifteen minutes before play started, and after a march up and down the field, took their seats in front of the Cadet Corps. The Tigers came on the field like a purple wave, and they were closely followed by the Maroon blankets. The Cadet Corps flattened the Dallas people by their yelling before the game started and the Sewanee team after the game started. Coach Bennet of the Tigers pulled something new in the football plunged and smashed through the line by winning the toss and then choosing the east goal when there gains. a hole at the Sewanee left tackle, and sent Gill and Neely through for substantial gains. On the Sewanee 35 yard line Evans sucked Perry in and made 18 yards on an end around. Gill and Neely again took up the plugging at the left side, and Gill carried it over before the hole was stopped. Knick kicked goal giving the Aggies first blood, and a lead of seven points.

The Tigers were apparently undaunted by the score for they came right back with a passing attack that threatened to be successful. Puny Wilson and Clem Pinson broke up the last flurry when they batted down a pass that had crossed the Aggie's goal. The Tigers never threatened after this play. Clem Pinson hurt his injured leg on this play and retired in favor of Fay Wilson. This gave the Aggies a little more punting power, and assured them of their ability to keep the Tigers out of their territory.

Both teams came back in the second half with the same line-up that left the field. The Aggies seemed dissatisfied with their slim lead and tore into the Tigers soon after the Neely, the shifty footed, kick-off. and Gill, the human battering-ram, weak Sewanee tackles for substantial aerial attack, and by the triple pass (Continued on Page 7) and Pistol, playing end for the fish, goal.

Bee said he looked like Firpo after Dempsey got through with him. They are going to ruin all of Bulls chances at the beauty contest if they keep up that kind of propaganda. That boy sure did play a game though and he deserved all the praise they gave him. He stopped end runs, line plunges, and passes.

Benny Garrity was there for the game and led the corps in some yells during halves. He was running up and down the main street of Dallas before the game giving the horn on his car a fit every time he saw a uniform.

The head of the Law School at the University is getting hard these days and comes out with the proclamation that none of his students can be associated with student activities. That meant that Shorty Nowatny, their yell leader, had to resign. Shorty was a good yell leader-last year he came over here of his own accord to arrange for the between halves demonstrations o fthe two schools. That was something that no yell leader had ever done before and was the act of a true sportsman. We sympathise with Texas in the loss of a * man of that type. * * *

Big Jim Forgason took a half hitch on one of the All-Southwestern 🌸 guard positions by his performance Saturday. His big body was in nearly every line play and he often broke through and caught runners behind the line. Very few of the experts notice the big boys stellar game as Bull is a more colorful player and he attracts all of their attention.
