yell leaders among the students who are continually yelling out what to do next. If you have anything to say at yell practice that is new or original, or that a hundred others like you aren't suggesting too, then stand up on the steps of the "Y" so that we may all look upon your beaming countenance. Otherwise don't be the type that thinks our yell leaders don't know what to do next.

Too bad, Third Battalion, that you had hard luck getting to Waco. After all, though, you got to Waco in time for dinner, and "he who laughs last is worth two in the bush."

WACO A. & M. CLUB ENTERTAINS MANY SENIORS AND EXES

pert salesman and president of the McLennan County Aggies' Club, presided over a program which was remarkable for its appeal.

All in all it was a great day. The ex-Aggies arriving on every train had a part in the parade in trucks bearing banners of each of the different county clubs which are a feature of the ex-student organizations. There was a band, too, for the exes, playing "Goodbye to Texas University."

The main event of the day insofar as the class of 1925 was concerned, was that banquet served at Mannechor Hall inside the Cotton Palace grounds. Accommodations for fifteen hundred persons had been provided by long tables. There is no telling how many of Texas' finest turkeys were put on the block for this feed nor how much of that remarkable Virginia ham there was. Hot rolls, potatoes, coffee, relish, lettuce and tomato salad and seconds on ice cream insured the success of the dinner.

Then "Old Luke" took charge. There were greetings by C. C. "Polly" Kreuger, president of the Association of Former Students of the College. "Polly," who is president of the San Antonio Machinery and Supply Co., told of the plans and aspirations and the progress of the Association. W. V. Crawford, president of the Waco Cotton Palace Association, told us that the city and the Cotton Palace belonged to us. Then our own Prexy praised the Waco hospitality and returned the greetings from President Crawford. Judge Marion S. Church, Attorney of Dallas and who was president of the Association of Former Students' last year, paid a glowing tribute to "Silent" Miller as he reviewed the remarkable accomplishments and tremendous disappointment of Louie from the standpoint of football. Cadet Col. Frank Stubbs responded for the class of '25 and then it was over.

It was a great event and the class of '25 is deeply appreciative of the splendid hospitality of the Waco exes.

AGGIES AND EXES ENJOY THEIR BIG DAY AT WACO

the streets of the city before the large crowds who stood spellbound watching the spectacle.

President W. B. Bizzell of A. and M. College led the Cadet Corps in its parade through the city.

The Cadet Corps—the largest in the history of A. and M., is made up of students from all sections of the state and neighboring states, formed the largest portion of the parade. The cadets marched with a quick, easy step to the martial music of the A. and M. Band.

Following the Cadet Corps were hundreds of alumni and ex-students of A. and M., who rode in cars flying the school colors of maroon and white.

Maroon and white armbands, with the words, "A Fighting Aggie"—indicative of the spirit and motto of the College, "Fight and Fight to Win"—were seen on the sleeves of thousands of coats in the crowds that thronged the sidewalks to see the marching cadets and filled the stands at the Cotton Palace grounds to witness the game.

After the parade, the Aggies were dismissed until time for the game. They scattered in all directions as they sought favored spots in the city. Some visited friends, some were kept busy finding a hotel, while others were content to spend the day at the Cotton Palace grounds. However, they eagerly and impatiently awaited the start of the game, and they assembled in the A. and M. section long before the start. The yells that came from this section proved that the spirit of the Corps was excellent and that the cadets were quite ready to help their team on to victory.

Just before the game the large freshman class was marched on the field. Four columns of men stood on the gridiron separated by a short distance. These students presented a calisthenic drill, which showed to everyone who watched them go thru the various exercises, that they were an efficiently trained unit. Much applause followed each drill as it was uniformly and accurately performed. The flags, colors, and standards of the school were placed between the second and third columns, along the fifty-yard line. The Band played "The Star Spangled Banner" as the freshmen saluted. This added a touch of patriotism to the spirit of the spectators.

The game—the most important event of the entire trip—proved to the entire state that loyalty of its students to A. and M. is the pervading spirit of the institution.

From the time after the game until train time, the cadets were at liberty to avail themselves of the various forms of amusement to be found either at the Cotton Palace grounds or in town. A dance, held in the Coliseum brought the visit to a close. Shortly after eleven, the cadets formed behind their stacks of guns, and presently, were marched to the waiting trains for the return trip. Many students, however, were given passes to remain in Waco over Sunday. These students returned to College Sunday night.

CIRCUS DAY IN BRYAN.

Circus talk is on the lips of every resident of Bryan and vicinity, for on Friday, November 7, the famous Carl Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus will pitch their "big top" in that city for two performances. From newspaper reports coming from over the entire country, this aggregation is presenting one of the most novel and highly entertaining programs that has ever been attempted.

One of the new features that will be presented will be an English fox hunt, in which a score of hunters and huntresses, two packs of genuine Walker hounds, and prize winning Kentucky thoroughbreds will participate. No other circus has ever attempted the staging of a fox hunt, and success was only attained after weeks of training and work. The horses are perfectly trained jumpers, and at the conclusion of the chase will engage in high jumping contests.

The afternoon performance will start promptly at 2 o'clock and the evening show at 8 o'clock; the menagerie will open an hour before each performance.

The big street parade, more than a mile long, will be given at 11 o'clock in the morning. In this gorgeous procession will be seen wild animals from every section of the globe; scores of beautiful women, mounted on Kentucky thoroughbreds; and five bands of musicians. After seeing the Hagenbeck parade, you will never say "that all circus parades are alike."

SENIOR CLUB RECEPTION.

Dr. and Mrs. W. B. Bizzell will give an informal reception to the Seniors at the official opening of the newly organized Senior Club in the club rooms at the Y. M. C. A. on Wednesday evening, November 5, at 8:00.

It is rumored that many pleasant surprises are in store for the Seniors and that entertainment will be of the sort that thrills even the most sapient. It is very likely that the Board of Directors of the College are to be honored guests at the reception, as well as many other honoraries. All Seniors are invited to attend.
