SAY AGGIE

From all accounts, it would seem that we have a close rival in the old fight. Another student body in the conference has discovered that a losing team needs support. In the game with Baylor, the Texas students did not stop yelling at all, although their team was almost hopelessly behind as far as the score goes. Even "Doc" was surprised when, after the game, a large crowd marched to his house as though they had won the game. Never before has the student body of State shown any sympathy and support for a losing team or coach, and we admire them for the stand they have taken this year. But do you realize what this means, gang? It means that we will be facing a team Thanksgiving that is supported apparently as well as our own team. We have about two weeks to think this over, so stay in there and FIGHT.

The freight trains running into Austin seemed to have done a rushing business last Saturday. And the Baylor students were highly commended for their school spirit in making such a sacrifice and suffering such discomforts in order to get to the game. Well, that is just another difference in A. and M. and Baylor. However much we may ride the freights, we never do it as official A. and M. students for fear that some country newspaper might take advantage of it and publish to the world that the Texas Aggies are just a bunch of ordinary roughnecks who have nothing else to do but beat the railroads out of their legitimate rates. Other schools may do things like that and get by with it, but whenever we attempt it, it just doesn't work so well.

Much has been said during the year about the conduct of the student body in the Assembly Hall. Also other means were used to keep better order during a show, but whatever caused it, a very noticeable improvement has been made, and the corps deserves some credit for improvement. It is hard to keep from following the custom of doing whatever anyone starts, and the kindness and consideration of the cadets in refraining from doing this is very much appreciated. This is only the respect due the campus people and should not require special attention.

COLLEGE PAYS TRIBUTE TO ITS HONORED DEAD

Monument of War Heroes Decorated With Flowers as Senior Cadet Officers Pass By.

The immortal heroes of A. and M. who were killed in the World War were honored Tuesday morning, the anniversary of the signing of the armistice, by a very impressive ceremony before the monument which bears their names. The touching suggestiveness of the military tribute was typified well by the salute and the sounding of taps in remembrance of the College World War dead.

The whole program was a fitting tribute to the valor and sacrifice of those who have gone before. The opening prayer was followed by the calling of the roll of the dead by Cadet Colonel F. M. Stubbs. The floral offerings laid at the monument by the cadet officers symbolized that reverence which the College feels for the men who so splendidly represented it before the world. Probably the firing of the salute and the sounding of taps moved the audience more than anything else to a feeling of solemnity and silent tribute.

"ON TO A. & M." IS THE CRY AT RICE INSTITUTE

Large Number of Owl Supporters Will Make the Trip to Witness the Game.

Following the victory over the Longhorns two weeks ago, the student body at Rice Institute took up the cry, "On to A. and M." They are coming intent upon defeating the Aggies on the historic Kyle Field, and paying Aggieland their bi-annual visit.

Advance information has been received from Houston that practically the entire student body, with their band is coming, accompanied by a large number of Houston football fans and Rice supporters. A large special train will be run by the H. & T. C. Friday morning to accommodate the large crowd and it will arrive here sometime that morning.

Aroused by the Owl victory over the University eleven, the Houston people are coming in large numbers,—most of them as supporters of the Rice team. Others are coming to enjoy the hospitalities extended to them by Aggieland. At any rate there will be a monster crowd to witness the game that afternoon. A. and M. is ready for their invasion and welcomes ready for their invasion and welcomes them.

CORPS WILL GO TO CAPITOL CITY THANKSGIVING

Will Parade in Column of Platoons Up Congress Avenue to Capitol—U. of T. Dedication Day.

Early on the morning of November 27, Aggieland will move to the Capitol City of Texas,—to the scene of the dedicatory exercises that will mark the formal opening of the gigantic memorial stadium, built by the students and exes of the University of Texas in commemoration of the services and sacrifices made by her sons

TEAM SELECTED FOR INTERNAT'L STOCK JUDGING

Eight Prominent Animal Husbandry Seniors Are Awarded Highest Honors of Their Department.

LEAVE COLLEGE TODAY

Will Judge Many Purebred Herds While on Journey to Chicago To Win Bronze Bull.

The Senior Stock Judging Team has been chosen, and announcement made that the team and its coach, Mr. W. L. Stangel, will leave the College Thursday, November 13th, enroute for the College Students' International Stock Judging contest, which will be held in Chicago, Saturday, November 29th.

The members of the team were chosen in competition which has extended over several weeks time. According to announcement made by Professor W. L. Stangel, coach of the team, the men chosen to represent A. and M. are: F. I. Dahlburg, Taylor; L. Dodson, Amarillo; O. H. Kimball, Alpine; C. G. Matern, Marble Falls; C. B. Johnson, Uvalde, and F. H. Stubbs, Robstown.

Besides the recognition and honor which is rewarded the men who make the team, knowledge is gained from experiences encountered on the way to Chicago. The Animal Husbandry Department of the college has arranged for visits to some of the most renown livestock producers farms in the United States. The team will leave College at noon Thursday, November 13, to compete in the American Royal contest at Kansas City, on November 15th.

The teams against which ours will compete will consist of men who have never participated in the International contests before. The Aggies have only to win the coveted Bronze Bull one time more to make it the permanent property of the College, and incidently, Purdue University is the only other college that has won the right to keep the Bull for a year's time as a reward for winning the contest. If the Aggies win this year the Bull will come to Aggieland as
